

College: Must Expand Or Explode

By FRED WYATT
(Last of a series)

In its bid for $11,305,000 through a tax increase, College of Marin asserts the state is forcing it to further expand to keep from exploding.

The fund bid is Proposition A on Tuesday's primary ballot. It asks addition of 35 cents to the present 42-cent college district tax on $100 of assessed evaluation, for a 10-year period. The college seeks to enlarge in Kentfield and branch to North Marin on a pay-as-you-go basis.

The school, "our own community college," is more important than ever before in its 35-year life under the three-year-old state master plan for higher education, declares Dr. Stephen E. Epler, college president.

Current enrollment is 1,238, a 38 per cent jump in one year and nearing the present capacity of 1,500.

The state is placing an increasingly heavy burden on Marin and other junior colleges, says Epler. Whereas 50 years ago there were no junior colleges in the state, there now are 70 and they have 110,000 full-time students, he declares. University of California and its branches have 55,000; state colleges, 70,000.

The university now is charged with increased emphasis on junior and senior years, graduate and professional training, says Epler. The seven campuses of UC now draw from the top one-sixth of our high school graduates. This coming September, it will limit admission to the top one-eighth."

Junior colleges now have 75 per cent of entering freshmen, he continues, and all high school graduates are admitted to College of Marin tuition-free. Since addition of Novato Unified School District to the See COLLEGE, page 5

Russ Food Price Hike Is Defended

Khrushchev Claims Measure Temporary

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev appealed tonight to the Soviet People for understanding in the government's decision to raise prices sharply on meat and butter.

"There was no other way out," He said in a speech broadcast to the nation over Radio Moscow.

He said there was a shortage of meat and butter and that drastic measures were necessary to supply the country's needs.

Khrushchev said funds could not be diverted from defense and that only a raise in prices could provide the money necessary to boost the nation's agricultural production to required levels.

"Not a single Communist will agree that we should lessen expenditures on the nation's defense," he said.

"We know how our enemies are trying to wipe us off the face of the earth, but we say: 'You won't manage to do that.'"

Khrushchev said the Soviet Union's strength was in its bulwark against the enemies of communism and "to prevent war we have to work and be very economical in expenditure, in distribution, and always show solicitude about defense."

He reassured the nation the increase in food prices was a necessary but "temporary" measure, the same promise made earlier by the official Communist Party newspaper Pravda.

Khrushchev addressed a Soviet-Cuban friendship meeting in the Kremlin but most of his words were clearly aimed at the Russian people.

Ambassador To Iraq Ousted —Kuwait Issue

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — Iraq has ordered the American ambassador to leave the country and has recalled its own ambassador from Washington in protest against U.S. accreditation of an ambassador from Kuwait, it was announced today.

Iraq claims the Persian Gulf sheikdom is part of Iraqi territory. A foreign ministry spokesman said President John F. Kennedy's acceptance of the credentials of the Kuwaiti envoy was regarded here "as an unfriendly act against Iraq."

The spokesman set no time limit for the departure of U.S. Ambassador John D. Jerne-gan, a career diplomat assigned to the Baghdad post in 1958 after Premier Abdel Karim Kassem overthrew King Faisal II.

Employers, Union Resume Efforts To Settle Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Employer and union negotiators resumed their efforts today to settle the month old strike-lock-out which closed many Northern California construction projects.

An optimistic atmosphere and hour by hour progress were reported.

The strike began May 1 when the Laborers' Union began spot picketing.

A spokesman for the Associated General Contractors said talks will continue tomorrow with the hope of reaching understanding which could be applied to all unions.

The talks, adjourned about 2 a.m. today at the Fairmont Hotel, were resumed later in the morning.

The spokesman, William H. Baldwin, said "progress is being made by the hour" and added that the "climate" was good during yesterday's session.

The dispute over terms for a new, three-year contract began May 1 when the union struck some projects, demanding a $1.15 an hour package increase. When picketing spread, the contractors retaliated and shutdown projects they said total 3.5 billion dollars.

JUDGE RICHARD SIMS
To higher bench?

Judge Sims Might Get Higher Bench

Richard M. Sims Jr., judge in the Marin County Superior Court, is one of three men said to be under consideration for appointment to a single vacancy on the First District Court of Appeals in San Francisco.

Appointment to the three-man tribunal will be made by Gov. Edmund G. Brown. Sims, who lives in Tiburon, is the only Democrat under consideration. If appointed, he would be the sole judge among nine in the court's three divisions representing the north coast counties.

Others reported to be under consideration are Presiding Superior Judge in San Francisco John B. Molinari and Superior Judge Norman Elkington, also of San Francisco.

Sims, 51, is a former Marin district attorney. He was elected to the Municipal Court in 1952, and in 1960 Brown appointed him to the Superior Court. He is a Stanford graduate and took his law degree at Harvard Law School.

The governor has told friends he will wait until after Tuesday's primary election to announce his choice.

COLLEGE TAX ISSUE

Terra Linda CSD Censures Leader

Terra Linda Community Services District directors last night censured board president Michael J. Franzblau for "arrogance, repeated attempts to embarrass his fellow directors and his continued disregard for the statutory limitations on the purposes and powers of this board."

The censure was passed by the board, Franzblau abstaining, after four of the five board members declared for a second time their opposition to Franzblau's attempts to win their endorsement of the proposed tax increase for the College of Marin.

The flat rebuttal to Franzblau's proposed endorsement was followed by statements by all board members that they favored the tax increase as "individual citizens" but believed such an endorsement was not the business of a CSD board.

Reconsideration of the endorsement last night took place before fewer than 15 persons at an hour-long special meeting.

The meeting was called by Franzblau to hear Clifford Lund, representative of the citizens' committee favoring Proposition A, speak on the alleged desire of the committee

Sheriff's Air Patrol Is Going Into Action

Marin Sheriff's Air Patrol will send six aircraft looking for a simulated air crash tomorrow morning, in a joint search and rescue exercise with the Marin Civil Air Patrol.

Alfred Hansen of Tiburon, past commander of the Sheriff's Air Patrol, said the mock search and rescue will begin at 8 a.m. and continue for about three hours. Eight members of the Sheriff's Air Patrol, which is headed by Capt. Robert Roberts of Novato, will take part in tomorrow's exercise.

As soon as the scene of the "crash" is announced, the search planes will take off from Smith Bros. Ranch north of Santa Venetia.

The Sheriff's Air Patrol is a volunteer group of men, who use their private planes to help in search and rescue operations when called upon by Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos. The Sheriff's Air Patrol has three planes based at all times at Novato Airport for any emergency duty.

German Guards Kidnap Youths

BERLIN (UPI) — Communist East German border guards today seized two West Berlin youths in broad daylight and dragged them through a barbed wire barricade into East Germany, West Berlin police said.

It was the second kidnapping in 24 hours. Last night the Communist border guards lured two teen-age West Berlin girls into Eastern territory before they shot and wounded one and kidnapped the other. (See page 2.)

Venezuela Rebels Seize Naval Base

CARACAS (UPI) — Rebels seized Venezuela's most important naval base in a new effort to topple President Romulo Betancourt, official sources said today.

The government ordered 3,000 loyal troops supported by jet fighters into the Puerto Cabello area to crush the insurgents.

'NOT RETIRING'

Teacher Of Art Says Farewell

By MICHAEL PERCY

"I am certainly NOT retiring!" declared Ann O'Hanlon of Mill Valley.

And perhaps she isn't "retiring," but she said goodbye this week to Dominican College after teaching art there for 20 years—"if art can be taught."

"When I first went to Dominican in 1942," said Mrs. O'Hanlon, wife of sculptor and University of California instructor Richard E. O'Hanlon, "the art department consisted of one room on the top floor of Guzman Hall, seven students and one shy, young teacher—me.

"I had no real training as a teacher, but the sisters were wonderful. They let me experiment and evolve my own methods. Methods that seemed to work."

Mrs. O'Hanlon doesn't believe art classes exist to train painters. "I've always tried to make my classes an aid to other departments, a supplement. Where does English end and history begin? Music and mathematics? All subjects are related.

"I've watched girls in class become interested in an art project and then see their interest in other subjects soar."

She said the same was true of her adult evening classes.

COL. EDWARD GILL
Retires from A. F.

A.F. Colonel Ends Career At Hamilton

Col. Edward C. Gill, Air Force region civil engineer retired yesterday from Hamilton Air Force Base.

Brig. Gen. Robert A. Curtin of the Air Force Civil Engineers Headquarters, Washington, D. C., presented Gill with the Air Force commendation ribbon during the ceremonies.

Gill, who lives at 393 Nova Albion Way, San Rafael, entered the Army Air Force in 1942. He served in North Africa and Italy during World War II as a unit commander. He has also been assigned to Japan, Spain, England and France.

Gill retired as regional civil engineer for the Western United States. His duties made him responsible for Air Force construction program of 640 million dollars for facilities to support the Titan, Atlas and Minuteman ICBM's.

Gill and his wife Genevieve have one daughter, Gloria.

Grownups Favor Road —But Not Youngsters

Stinson Beach and Bolinas fifth and sixth graders found by a sample survey that grownups in the two sea towns favor "the new road" two-to-one.

But, contrariwise, the 22 students in the two classes were against it and none wanted to write a paper favoring the road, even as an exercise.

"The new road" is but one subject in the students' magazine, "Assignments V and VI," produced through assignments of their teacher, Peter M. Auer.

It was published in 100 copies at 25 cents each and sold out in two days.

The 38-page publication has articles on the histories of Stinson Beach and Bolinas, essays, poetry, and a section called "science fiction and fantasy."

The classes chose the best of the students' materials, Auer said, and edited much of it.

"My wife typed it and it was printed by the county superintendent of schools office," he added. Funds from the magazine, the first of its kind to be published by the students, go into the student body fund.

Auer said he assigned some students to write about the

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Explosives Near JFK Estate

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A mysterious barrel lying on the beach 15 yards from the mansion of President John F. Kennedy's father was found to contain enough explosives to flatten everything within 50 yards.

Navy demolition experts said the object was a 55-gallon drum of metallic sodium which, if rain water had beaten into its open top, would have exploded. A brisk shower fell 1½ hours after the Navy men had arrived.

The Naval Ordnance Facility team replaced the lid, took the drum out to sea and exploded it with a time device. As the sodium and the sea mixed together, a continuous, rumbling explosion ensued for about three minutes. Investigators said the drum was a commercial container that might have fallen off a ship and drifted ashore. A similar drumful of sodium was found Tuesday at Key Largo, south of Miami, and was exploded safely.

Hazardous X-15 Success

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — X-15 pilot Bob White, skirting the fringes of space, deliberately tilted the nose of the stubby-winged rocket plane higher than the tail and plunged back into the atmosphere at 3,750 miles an hour.

He did it to test one possible way of slowing the descent of future space craft.

Flight engineers on the ground crossed their fingers yesterday, aware the drop from 129,000 feet was the most hazardous re-entry maneuver yet attempted in the pioneer craft.

75 Airmen Poisoned

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — More than 75 airmen were hospitalized for food poisoning yesterday after eating in the main mess hall at McConnell Air Force Base.

They complained of upset stomach and nausea and were kept overnight for observation. None appeared to be in serious condition, a base spokesman said.

The airmen were among more than 1,000 who had eaten in the mess hall.

Up, Up, Up And Up

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Two young balloonists from the University of Minnesota, who said they hadn't planned to go up at all, found themselves soaring 11,500 feet above Nashville.

Tracy Barnes, former sky-diving paratrooper, said he and his partner, Lee Becker, were demonstrating the balloon to friends at a South Nashville residence yesterday.

"A gust of wind came along and knocked the balloon loose from the rope moorings and suddenly we were going up," he said.

The valve that controls the flow of hot air into the nylon balloon causing it to rise wouldn't close. When at 11,500 feet they finally got it turned off, their descent was so rapid they had to turn it on again to slow the drop.

They finally eased their craft, 70 feet tall and 46 feet in diameter, over treetops and, barely missing some high voltage lines, into the backyard of a West Nashville apartment house. The crosstown trip took one hour.

Windsors Celebrate

NEW YORK (AP) — At a small shipboard champagne dinner party tomorrow the only king ever voluntarily to abdicate the throne of Britain and the woman for whom he did it will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary.

"We made it last," the Duke and Duchess of Windsor responded, almost in unison, just before embarking yesterday on the liner United States for Europe. They had been asked whether they recalled predictions that their marriage would be short-lived.

On June 3, 1937, in a friend's chateau in France, the man who had ruled Britain for 324 days as Edward VIII and Wallis Simpson were married.

He gave up the crown and an income of more than three million dollars a year to marry the twice-divorced American commoner.

"Are we happy?" he repeated a question. "We certainly are. Just look at us. We look happy, don't we?"

Both were smiling.

York Wants Home

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — World War I hero Alvin C. York wants to go home.

The sharp-shooting Tennessee sergeant was brought to a Nashville hospital Tuesday for tests to determine the cause of internal bleeding which has stopped.

X-rays showed no signs of cancer or ulcers.

York, 74, Medal of Honor winner, was reported sitting up and apparently enjoying himself Friday. He said he wanted to return to his home at Pall Mall, Tenn., in two or three days.

Farmers For Peace

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Californians trained in farming are needed in the Peace Corps.

Lionel Steinberg, vice president of the State Board of Agriculture and the board's representative in assisting the corps, said nations trying to improve farm techniques have requested 1,000 Americans with agricultural backgrounds.

Steinberg said Friday that California provides more men and women to the corps than any other state.

Four Injured When Station Wagon Slammed

Four members of a San Francisco party returning from Petaluma Thursday evening suffering minor injuries when their station wagon slammed into another and overturned on the Greenbrae overpass of Highway 101.

Both vehicles were southbound. Adolf August Lindeas, also from San Francisco, stopped on the southern slope of the bridge and changed a tire in the right lane.

As he was about to start again at 7:05 p.m., a car driven by Jose Maria Matusz came over the rise of the bridge in the same lane, glanced off the stationary wagon and overturned just beyond.

Treated at Marin General Hospital were Hector N. Olaya, bruised neck and leg; Rosa A. Escobar, bruised neck and left shoulder; Lola J. Vallecillo, bruised chest and back; and Simona Maltes, head cuts and bruises of chest and back.

Purchase Necessary For Crashed Plane

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — Two Ciudad Obregon, Mexico, men escaped injury when they crash-landed their light plane near this border town.

They said they didn't know why the engine failed. Purpose of their trip to the United States was to buy airplane parts.

PROTESTING TESTS — A police officer jostled with a leftwing Zengakuren student in Tokyo today. The student was among 50 who were demonstrating near the U. S. Embassy,

Fallout Dangers Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fallout from nuclear testing has slightly increased the health risks faced by Americans, the Federal Radiation Council says.

Birth defects in future generations are likely because of radiation released by test detonations, the council said in a report made public yesterday. And, for persons now alive, the report said, fallout may mean an increased danger of leukemia or bone cancer.

But it added: "Compared to the number of these same adverse biological effects occurring wholly apart from testing, the additional cases that might be caused by testing are a very small quantity."

"We expect there will be some genetic effects; other effects such as leukemia and cancer are more speculative and may not occur at all."

If fallout causes additional cases of leukemia, the council said, the individual American stands at the most a chance of one in 100,000 of developing the disease because of it.

And if some cases of bone cancer can be blamed on fallout, his maximum risk is estimated as one in 300,000.

As for hereditary damage, the maximum risk for an infant born to Americans now alive is one in a million.

Kennedy Summer Plans Revealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy will vacation in the early part of this summer at the home of singer and Mrs. Morton Downey on Squaw Island at Hyannis Port, Mass.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said Mrs. Kennedy probably will take the children, Caroline and John Jr., to the Downey residence in mid-June.

They will stay on until the end of July, and the president likely will spend his weekends with them.

MEMPHIS (AP) — Mrs. Tom J. Boden has been married so long she's worn out her first wedding ring and started on another.

Mrs. Boden, 89, and her husband, 92, celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary recently.

GUARDS ON BORDER LURE GIRLS TO TRAP

BERLIN (AP) — Lured by a friendly voice, two teen-aged West Berlin girls walked into a Communist trap last night.

East German border guards kidnaped one, shot the other.

It was the third serious shooting incident along West Berlin's un-easy border in 10 days.

West Berlin police said the two girls, both 17 and identified only as Ursula and Karin, had approached the border separating Communist East Germany from the American Sector borough of Lichtenfelde.

Presumably the girls intended to wave to or speak to friends in the Red sector. Friendly East German guards often aid such meetings, either actively or at least by turning the other way. This seemed to be the case last night.

"Come up to the wire," an East German guard called out to Ursula and Karin. "Your girl friend is waiting for you."

The two girls walked forward, crossing into Communist territory as they approached the barbed wire fence, set back a distance from the actual demarcation line.

When they reached the wire, the East German guards grabbed Karin and dragged her through the fence. As Ursula turned and fled toward the West, the guards opened fire with machine guns. Bleeding from a wound in the hip, she reached the border again and staggered to a police post.

American military police rushed to the border but could find no trace of Karin.

Chairmen Named For Novato School Tax Hike Election

Committee chairmen were named Thursday in the organizational meeting of the Novato citizens committee for the school tax increase at the special July 24 election, according to Don Swan, temporary chairman.

James McConnell of 25 Plaza Loma was named to head a fact and information committee. Donald Robinson of 1 Sylvan Circle will head the promotion committee. Leo Mindling of 1822 Virginia Avenue and Peter Ferrarese of 10 Los Alondras are co-chairmen of the finance committee.

The next meeting of the committee has been set for June 11 at the Marion School.

Combined Graduation Slated For Neil Cummins, Clemente

Graduation programs for Neil Cummins and San Clemente schools will be combined June 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Corte Madera Recreation Center.

Benediction and invocation will be by Rev. Tod W. Ewald, pastor of the Holy Innocents Church in Corte Madera.

Vice Commander Ronald Specht of Twin Cities Post 313, American Legion, will present medals to the valedictorians: Cheryl Redding of San Clemente and Jacqueline Crisp of Neil Cummins.

Supt. Vaughn D. Seidel of Larkspur School District will give a welcoming talk and introduce the salutatorians, Rachael Rice of Neil Cummins and Edward Murdoch of San Clemente. Also introduced will be class historians Carole Dietz of San Clemente and Cathy Girvin and Lee Florence of Neil Cummins.

John R. Cunningham, of the district board of trustees, will hand out diplomas. There are 95 to be graduated from Neil Cummins and 19 from the new San Clemente School.

Mrs. Kathleen Bales, district music instructor, will provide the piano accompaniment for the recessional. The graduates will then form a receiving line in the community center patio.

The ceremonies will be followed by a dance in the multi-purpose room of San Clemente School. Following tradition, fathers will dance with their graduating daughters and mothers with their graduating sons for the last dance of the evening.

Ceremonies For 35 Set At Hall School

Graduation ceremonies for the 35 graduates of Henry C. Hall School in Larkspur will be held June 12 at 8 p.m. in the school multi-purpose room.

Mill Valley Files Sign Complaint

The City of Mill Valley has filed a misdemeanor complaint against Francis M. Gelardi of Mill Valley and John Gaidano of San Anselmo, charging them with violation of the sign ordinance at the Mill Valley Shopping Center building at Miller and Evergreen avenues.

City Atty. Leland H. Jordan alleges two signs that are too high are being placed without benefit of a sign permit and the law has been exceeded in that area more than the allowed four signs on the building. Gelardi and Gaidano operate the G & G Co., prescription pharmacy within the building.

Invocation and benediction will be by Rev. Joseph Martelli, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Larkspur.

Diplomas will be presented by Mrs. Pauline Secor, clerk of the Larkspur School District Board.

Vice Commander Ronald Specht of Twin Cities Post 313, American Legion, will present a medal to the valedictorian, Heidi Lerner.

Co-salutatorians will be Carol Shenson and Claudia Marker.

Piano accompaniment for the processional and recessional will be played by Mrs. Kathleen Bales, district music instructor.

A graduation party will follow the ceremonies.

Kent School Plans Outdoor Graduation

Outdoor graduation ceremonies for A. E. Kent School will be held June 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the school's quadrangle.

Diplomas will be presented to the 148 eighth grade graduates by Mrs. Watson Conner, president of the Kent field School District Board.

Student body president Karen Fisher will introduce the faculty and give a welcoming address. Eighth grader Carol Hinkley will present a class prophecy.

Graduate Dan Kreps will speak on "Our Future in the Computer Age."

Musical solos will be by Christine Dettner, violin; and Nancy Norton, piano. Choral selections will be by the girls' glee club, directed by Mrs. Francis Brodie, music director for the district.

Twin Cities Program Set At Rec Center

Graduation program for Larkspur-Corte Madera School will be held June 12 at 8 p.m. in the Corte Madera Recreation Center.

Rev. Frank S. Hamilton of Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur will give the invocation and benediction.

REDWOOD HIGH FOR FALLOUT SHELTER SITE?

Redwood High School as possible site of a fallout shelter will be discussed at Monday night's meeting of the Tamalpais Union High School District board.

Supt. Chester G. Carlisle will report on a conference he held with Corte Madera Town Manager Arthur R. Brandow, who requested the consideration.

Brandow made the request in connection with the federal government survey of Marin buildings suitable for shelter sites.

Larkspur School District superintendent, will give a welcoming talk. Salutatory address will be by eighth grader Heidi Harker.

Winfield A. Wagner, commander of Twin Cities Post 313 of the American Legion, will present a medal to valedictorian Paula Purkey.

John W. Boyd of the district board of trustees will address the graduating class and hand out diplomas to the 61 graduates.

The recessional will be followed by a greeting line in the recreation center patio for parents and friends.

Paradise Owners Elect President, Other Officers

Bertram H. Hirsch was Thursday elected president of the Paradise Property Owners Assn.

H. S. Dodge will serve as co-chairman. Other officers will be Richard Lee, secretary, and Dorothy Trenam, treasurer.

Area representatives elected were Thomas F. Fitzgerald, Charles A. Winslow, Dr. William L. Bewley, Capt. John Madden and Vibella Martin.

Fifty members heard Robert Bailey, consultant-administrator to Novato during its incorporation, discuss the incorporation of Tiburon. He advised determining the objectives and costs and deciding if the former outweigh the latter.

The membership recommended that the board poll property owners before taking an official stand on incorporation.

Library In Sausalito Has Weighty Problem

Balancing the weight in the Sausalito Public Library is tougher than balancing the budget.

The subject of weight came up again this week at a meeting of the library board on the 1962-63 budget, when it was noted that space was needed for 100 books given the library by the Chilean government.

"The only way we could get the books in," said Mrs. George C. Cummings, board president, "was to take out a very heavy table."

City Manager Charles A. Brown has given orders, Mrs. Cummings said, that no more new books are to be added unless an equal weight of books go out. The order followed an engineer's inspection last year which showed the floor of the library, directly over the city council chambers, is safe as long as no more weight is added.

"We have books sitting on top of the stacks," said Mrs. Cummings. "No more weight," says Mr. Brown.

The 1962-63 budget proposes an increase to add more books. "We've got to keep on buying new books," said Mrs. Cummings.

The proposed budget is $21,820, which figure includes

ICC Is Resuming Its Hearings On Tunnel Abandonment By Railway

A representative of the Marin County counsel's office will join an already imposing throng of lawyers Monday for renewed federal hearings on proposed abandonment of Puerto Suello tunnel railway service.

This will be the fourth start before Interstate Commerce Commission examiner F. Roy Linn since last Jan. 25. All concerned have expressed hope that it will be the last.

Having met in three San Francisco locations thus far, the latest resumption will again be where the hearings began last January—at the New Mint Building, 133 Herman Street, at 9:30 a.m. Prospects are that at least another full week will be required.

Witnesses for the petitioning Northwestern Pacific Railroad will be cross-examined at the outset, with San Rafael opposition witnesses scheduled next.

Boris H. Lakusta, special attorney for San Rafael in opposition to the railroad's effort to abandon the burned and collapsed tunnel and permanently halt service on 2.46 miles of mainline tracks north to Santa Venetia, said today he will have both engineering and shipper witnesses available.

Randolph Karr, chief counsel for the railroad, has just returned from a holiday trip to Europe which followed the last sessions in the Whitcomb Hotel at the end of March. He concurred in interruption of cross-examination of some of his witnesses to let some San Rafael witnesses take the stand and may now have several new witnesses.

Following direct examination, any witness may be cross-examined by any lawyer who has been entered at the hearing. The more active have thus far included attorneys Frederick G. Pfommer for the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad and Hector Annos for the California Public Utilities Commission, with occasional participation by representatives of a dozen railroad unions.

Legal representation for the Bay Area Rapid Transit District will be withdrawn Monday due to Marin withdrawal from the district. If abandonment were granted, the district wanted it conditional on giving rapid transit first chance at the railroad right-of-way.

It was the rapid transit withdrawal which caused Marin County supervisors last Tuesday to decide on "more active" support of San Rafael opposition, additional to financial aid.

County Counsel E. Warren McGuire said today that he or his assistants would like a little more specific guidance as to their position.

"We want to keep close to information about the hearings," said Supervisor Chairman Walter R. Castro. "That is the main thing, I'd say. But if anything can be done by the county to help give a push to the San Rafael effort, we would be prepared to help."

Choice Of New Tam Principal Due

Supt. Chester G. Carlisle of Tamalpais Union High School District expects to announce a new principal for Tamalpais High School at Monday night's meeting of trustees, he announced today.

The meeting will be at 8:30 p.m. in the library of Sir Francis Drake High School following a tour of the school beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The principal will be named to succeed Richard Campion, who has resigned to return to teaching.

Carlisle said he expects to name a new English teacher for Redwood High School to succeed Mrs. Carol Neumeier, who has been given counselor duties in addition to her role as journalism teacher.

REDEEMER CHAPEL—This is a drawing by the Bay Group Assoc. architectural firm of a proposed new chapel of the Church of the Redeemer in Glenwood. It is part of a plan to build a parish hall, two educational buildings and a main sanctuary at the church's present 3 1/2 acre site. Construction is scheduled to begin this summer, said Howard Simon, building committee chairman.

Two Marin Science Churches Affiliate

Two Marin Religious Science churches have affiliated it was announced today.

The Family Church of Marin, San Anselmo and the First Church of Religious Science, San Rafael will hold joint programs. Adult services will be led by Rev. Thelma Olsen of the San Rafael church and college, teenage and children's services will be handled by Rev. Paula Scott of the San Anselmo Church.

Adult services are scheduled at the San Rafael church at 11 a.m. with a preceding 15-minute period for silent prayer and organ healing meditation. Both churches' practitioners and ministers are available for help for members of the congregations or others, regardless of membership elsewhere, said Rev. Olsen.

SAYS PAINTER

All Churches Should Have Art Galleries

NEW YORK (UPI)—A leading modern painter who specializes in religious subjects is conducting a one-man crusade to persuade churches to establish art galleries as well as recreation rooms.

Fred Nagler, noted for his madonna and child and last supper paintings, feels liturgical works belong in churches, not in private homes or museums. He is convinced that if churches made a place for paintings and sculpture they would receive such works as gifts.

"In the old days, a church would have its walls decorated by one artist," Nagler said in a recent interview. "What they ought to do today is to have art galleries, to interest the intelligentsia in religion."

"I know lots of churches have swimming pools and gymnasiums but ignore culture. To hold the people they have to try to bring in the intelligentsia through art, music and dancing. If there were galleries in churches, paintings bought by wealthy people would be given to churches instead of museums. They would be put in church galleries, where they really belong."

"Twenty million people went to major museums in the United States last year. A lot of these same people would go to churches if they had exhibitions. Religious leaders do not know the value of art. They are so involved with the word that they don't see the power of the picture."

Nagler has managed to get a few of his works hung in religious institutions. Two are at Notre Dame University. Two are in the Church of the Redeemer in Reading, Pa., and one is in the chapel at Yale University. But most are in private collections or museums.

His most recent work is based on the Biblical account of the replacement of the murderer Barabbas by Jesus at the crucifixion. Nagler and five other artists were paid commissions by Columbia Pictures, which has made a film on Barabbas for release later this year. Since nothing further is known of Barabbas beyond his release from the sentence of death, the movie is an imaginary account of what happened to him later. The six artists were given equal license in their paintings, one of which is an abstraction. Their paintings are being sent on a nationwide tour of art galleries during the spring and summer.

Nagler hopes the display will call attention of the public to religious art and perhaps stimulate churches to try to obtain worthwhile paintings and sculpture.

LAST DAY AS ACTIVE PRIEST

It will be an important day tomorrow in the life of Rev. S. R. Hammond, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer in Glenwood.

Participation in a service of confirmation with Rt. Rev. Richard Mullard, Suffragan Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California at 3 p.m. will conclude Father Hammond's 51 years as an active Episcopal priest. And following the confirmation services, Bishop Mullard will dedicate the church's present 3 1/2-acre site in Glenwood which will be developed soon, under a master plan for new church. Following the dedication and groundbreaking ceremonies a reception will be held to greet the newly confirmed and to honor Rev. and Mrs. Hammond.

Rev. Hammond and his wife, Hattie W. Reid Hammond, have not only dedicated five decades to ministering to others through the Episcopal Church, but four of their five sons became Episcopal rectors. The late Rev. Keith Hammond was rector of Christ Church in Mill Valley, Rev. Murray Hammond is rector of Church of Saviour, Mill Valley, and at Berkeley is W. Reid Hammond, rector of St. John's, Lakeport, and Fred C. Hammond is rector of St. John's Church in San Bernardino.

H. Reginald Hammond is assistant superintendent of schools at Shafter.

Father Hammond was born in Guilford Surrey, England. He took his degrees in liberal arts and theology at St. John's College in Winnipeg, Canada. In 1911 Father Hammond was assigned his first parish at Pierston in Manitoba, Canada. He also served parishes in Brandon, same province, and in Ventura and Los Angeles.

In 1950 he came to Marin and served at Christ Church in Mill Valley, and seven years later became organizing pastor of the Church of the Redeemer in Glenwood which worships in the old McNear family mansion, also the church manse.

A main church building is included in the plans of the Bay Group Assn., architectural firm of San Francisco, announced Howard Simon, chairman of the Building Committee. Other structures will include a parish hall, and two educational buildings. One of the educational units will be constructed this summer and used as a temporary chapel to seat 200 persons. The chapel will later be converted to a Sunday school. The buildings will be of brick and redwood to blend with the surrounding hills and Glenwood homes, said Simon.

The Hammonds plan to retire in Mill Valley after visiting relatives in Canada, Safer, Lake County, and San Bernardino.

St. Sebastian Women To Receive Communion

St. Sebastian's Women's Club will receive regular monthly communion tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. Immediately following the mass, newly-elected officers of the club will be installed at a breakfast to be held at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito.

Reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. W. G. Fleckles or Mrs. Paul Maggi of Greenbrae.

Capital Punishment

San Rafael Priest Is Against It

California's correctional system has only one black spot, says Rev. Daniel McAlister, parish administrator of St. Raphael's Catholic Church in San Rafael.

Capital punishment.

"... This revolting and useless form of punishment should be abolished," asserts the former San Quentin Prison chaplain who has attended 70 executions. "The man on the street does not have to see the condemned men waiting for the end. If he did, perhaps he would realize that killing a man is simply a confession that society does not have the interest, the patience, the Christianity to go on working for the redemption of the one sheep who has strayed from the fold. We have Our Lord's own words to tell us that efforts to redeem sinners, to work with them in even the most discouraging cases, to love them despite their crimes, is a nobler course than to kill them."

"Criminals do not produce themselves; the society in which they live produces them," declares Father McAlister, whose views on the subject are published in this month's issue of Way, a national Catholic magazine. The article is entitled "Death Is No Answer."

Father McAlister writes that before he served at San Quentin he shared the "common assumption that equal justice is available to all, and that men who received the death penalty must have killed their victims with calm and deliberate intent. But later he says he found the weights of the scales of justice were many times unbalanced."

Father McAlister also assailed the long stay of prisoners on "Death Row." "It causes the men to deteriorate mentally, morally and even spiritually."

After his ten years of visiting condemned men twice per week Father McAlister is convinced that "killing a man legally is as senseless as the murder for which he was condemned ... To kill a man for a crime is to sweep dirt under the rug. It is too easy, and like most easy solutions, it does not get at the root of the problems."

The priest, who has studied at Maynooth and the North American College in Rome, said often he had been asked by opponents of capital punishment: Where the church stands on the issue? He answers that the church cannot deny that the state has the supreme right and duty to promote the common good and defend it against enemies, but capital punishment, he says, presumes that the end cannot be obtained by the use of other and less severe means. He added that the church has declined to exercise pressure on the California legislature.

In conclusion Father McAlister maintains that the death penalty should first be abolished, "... and then let us go forward with the further legislation which is necessary to stop crime before it occurs."

Parish Gets New Members

Samuel S. Bloom of Sausalito has become the 100th member of the Community Congregational Church of Belvedere-Tiburon.

The church, originally organized Sept. 13, 1959, meets at the Tiburon Playhouse and this year plans to start building on a hill near Hawthorne Terrace in Tiburon.

Also joining at a recent meeting held at the White Memorial Retreat in Mill Valley were Mr. and Mrs. David Kilmer of Belvedere and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith and their daughter Sandra of Strawberry.

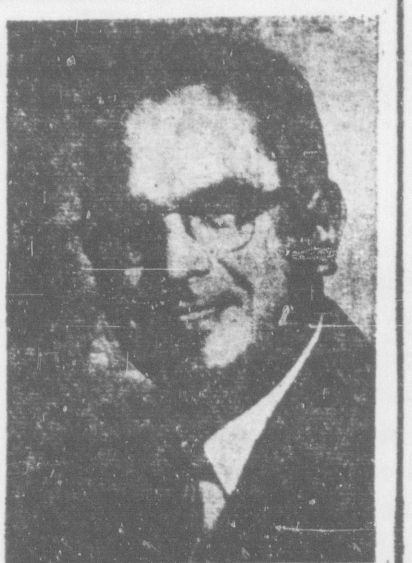

Dr. Benton S. Gaskell, pastor, announced church was officially voted a member of the United Church of Christ on May 17.

The following new officers have been elected: Robert D. Evans, treasurer; Allan Littman, auditor; Mrs. C. J. Lennihan, clerk; Charles Bancroft, member-at-large, church council; Samuel Fordyce and Fred Rowley, trustees; William Logan, Mrs. Tyler Seeley, diaconate; Mrs. James Bloom, Mrs. Anne DeMartini and Mrs. Mary Logan, Christian education; Norman Stroyd, music committee and Mrs. S. T. Barber, James Bloom and Mrs. Robert D. Evans, nominating committee.

The church school will close for the summer on June 10 and worship service hour will be changed from 11 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. starting June 17.

U.S. Prison Bureau Head Is For It

WASHINGTON (UPI)—James V. Bennett, director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons, says church groups and others who abhor the death penalty are hurting their own cause by demanding that it be abolished outright.

"Capital punishment cannot be completely abolished at this time," he said in an interview. "Efforts to achieve this unrealistic goal are actually a disservice. It would be far better if the abolitionists would concentrate on narrowing the application of the death penalty to a few especially heinous crimes, and surrounding its imposition with more safeguards."

Within recent years, a dozen major religious denominations have advocated abolition of capital punishment. Church councils in many states are currently waging drives against it.

Bennett whose father was an Episcopal clergyman, said he does not dispute the assertions of churchmen that legal executions have a "brutalizing" effect on society, that innocent people sometimes are put to death, and that the penalty is applied unfairly against the "penniless and friendless" who cannot arrange for endless appeals.

Bennett said he would retain the death penalty for such offenses as "murder for hire, murder involving a law enforcement officer engaged in his duties, kidnapping, treason, the bombing of an airplane and the bombing of innocent people in a school building or a church."

"For all other capital offenses now on the statute books, he said, 'I would make the penalty life imprisonment.'"

He said the actual imposition of the death penalty, even for the crimes mentioned, should never be left to the sole discretion of the trial judge, but should require "the concurrence of the judge and the jury." It would be better, he said, to "require a separate jury trial on the issue of sentence, as divorced from conviction."

Finally, he said, there should be provision for "automatic psychiatric examination" of any defendant facing a possible death penalty, and "automatic appeal, to higher courts, with the defendant provided the services of a paid, rather than a volunteer counsel."

"With these safeguards," he said, "we could make sure that the death sentence would never be lightly nor indiscriminately used. This approach would eliminate the justifiable objections to capital punishment."

Army Tells Plan For June Grad

Graduating Marin County youth are being offered a special June enlistment bargain by the Army.

During this month a special program gives opportunity to be stationed in the Bay area for training in the guided missile and electronics field.

Those accepted, according to Sgt. Donald Lembcke of the San Rafael recruiting office, will take three-year enlistments in the Army Air Defense Command. After eight weeks of basic training at Fort Ord on the Monterey Peninsula they will return to the Bay area for assignment to a Nike Hercules missile site for further training.

To be eligible a man must be between the ages of 17 and 34, pass qualification tests and have special interest in the guided missile field.

Sergeant Lembcke has further information at 819 A Street, San Rafael, room 27, 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday during June, Friday and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

To seek the board's endorsement.

But Lund presented facts and figures about the increase and then announced he felt it was "outside the board's jurisdiction" to endorse such an issue and the committee did not want any endorsement.

Director Melvin Warenback questioned Lund about who requested his presence at the meeting. Lund said he was asked to represent the committee because Franzblau had called, requesting someone to attend and speak for the increase.

The board had previously dismissed the proposed endorsement at its regular meeting last Monday. Franzblau said he wanted board members to take another look at the endorsement last night.

After learning of the circumstances in which the meeting was called, Warenback proposed the motion censuring Franzblau.

"You men are fighting paper tigers," Franzblau said. "You should be concerned with issues, not with people. Your personal feelings of animosity are overriding the importance of Proposition A. But I do recognize your right to your own opinion."

Franzblau said later he does not "recognize the validity of the charges" in the censuring motion.

"I honestly believe any board member should discuss anything, and they have denied me the right to speak. I will continue to do everything possible to bring important issues to the attention of the public."

But Warenback said: "The four to nothing vote on the resolution to censure was the result of months of board members' imploring the board president to confine the board's activities to those functions for which the board exists."

"It is the intention of the board to demonstrate to the president that we can no longer tolerate the calling of special meetings which invariably result in the embarrassment of this board as well as the people who are in attendance."

college district, by 10-to-1 vote last January, 90 per cent of county population will live within the college district.

Epler cites tuition increases and stricter entrance requirements as keeping more and more students out of four-year institutions.

For those able to study only two years in college, Marin offers 14 courses to give the graduate an Associate in Arts degree and training to function in the work-a-day world. It plans 16 new courses.

Theodore C. Wellman, chairman of the citizens advisory committee that helped draft Proposition A, terms junior college education, "particularly in Marin County, excellent education at a bargain."

His committee urged the tax measure as a means of saving six million dollars under a bond issue.

The expansion to take care of the increasing enrollment has been laid out under a master plan adopted last year by the college trustees. Land for expansion in Kentfield, across College Avenue from the present campus, already has been purchased.

The present football field would become a parking lot under the plan, and a new football field would be on the newly acquired property. Classroom buildings would be generally grouped on the present property, with administration, student union building, etc., across the street.

Second phase of the planned expansion will involve acquiring property for a second campus somewhere in North Marin.

first at College of Marin and later at Dominican.

Education places too much emphasis on memory, Mrs. O'Hanlon believes strongly, and not enough on "immediate intake."

"Even the memory of seeing," she said. "When most people see the bleached bones of a steer or some other animal in the desert they see the animal it was, not as it is—a work of great beauty, art, created by nature."

"We must educate vision, teach people to see, to find the beauty that exists everywhere around us."

"That's what I've tried to do in my small way; and that's why I'm so grateful to the sisters at Dominican for giving me the opportunity."

But about "not retiring?" "True, I'm leaving Dominican and active teaching," she said, "but I feel the past 20 years have been part of my education, too. Now I must apply what I've learned."

The O'Hanlons plan to leave June 10 for the summer in Europe where they're going to "look and see—not to be seen."

Mrs. O'Hanlon will also take colored slides. She now has over 10,000—taken during previous trips to Europe and around the world—which she uses in her "direct intake versus memory" lectures.

Besides a few conventional shots, her unusual collection includes the inside of colored tulips, close-ups of the texture and shape of rocks, trees, leaves, the wing of a butterfly.

In the fall, Mrs. O'Hanlon's husband, whose sculpture has gained national prominence, will hold a one-man show in New York City.

And then back to Mill Valley and the O'Hanlon home at 616 Throckmorton Avenue: four and one half acres on which stand the family home, three studios, a guest cottage and "the barn," where Mrs. O'Hanlon will hold seminars.

She also plans to set up a workshop "not necessarily for artists, but for people like myself interested in learning to see, in living what they see."

"That's why I feel I'm not retiring; I'm just at the beginning."

Thieves Hit Two Autos In Carport

Two apartment house dwellers at 137 Canal Street, San Rafael, told San Rafael police yesterday that equipment was stolen from their vehicles parked in the apartment building's carport.

Edward J. LeVasseur in apt. 6 said his car had been jacked up and a front wheel and tire stolen.

Marguerite M. Kennedy reported a tool box stolen from her husband's pickup truck. The box contained parts for a paint spray gun, wrenches and other small tools, total value of about $250.

Job Firms Opening Offices

Two employment firms, unrelated in ownership, will open branch offices Monday at 1000 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael.

Kelly Girl Service, Inc., a nationwide organization headquartered in Detroit, which acts as an agency in part-time office work for women, will have its Marin activities under management of Doreen Adams of Sausalito. Mrs. Francisca McCluggage of Sausalito will also be associated with the firm in a promotional capacity.

The branch will actually be an associate of the San Francisco office, which also maintains a branch in Redwood City. Charlotte Stone of San Francisco, who has supervised the opening of the San Rafael office, said it will be the 152nd Kelly Girl branch in the United States.

Prime Employers Agency, a San Francisco firm covering fulltime employment for both men and women in all but the domestic and culinary fields, is a partnership of George Brouse, 232 Mornings Drive, Corte Madera, and Ted Chisholm, 302 Third Street, Sausalito. This will be their first branch office.

Brouse said that in studying the projected growth for the Bay Area they concluded Marin County offers one of the biggest service in employment service in coming years.

Both offices will maintain hours from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Mondays through Fridays.

Conference On Welfare Winding Up

About 175 delegates are expected to attend tonight's banquet at Rickey's Rancho Rafael to wind up a two-day conference of the statewide Family Support Council and the District Attorney Investigators Assn.

San Francisco attorney J. W. (Jake) Ehrlich will speak at the banquet.

Marin District Attorney's Investigator William Bemiss, chairman of the convention, announced that delegates are attending from as far as Oregon and Nevada.

The chief aim of the conference is to exchange ideas and information on tracking down parents who fail to support their children.

State Sen. James A. Cobey (D-Merced), in a principal address to the convention yesterday, cited a recent investigation in the District of Columbia which showed that over half of the welfare recipients there were not entitled to what they received.

Senator Cobey used this as an example to show the necessity for checking on aid recipients. He did not suggest that half the recipients in California are receiving illegal aid.

Paul Anglade discusses Water District problems important to YOU

LONG RANGE PLANNING

Marin County is growing at a rate that will see 90,000 additional water consumers here in a mere eight years. Most of these will undoubtedly be in the Marin Municipal Water District.

We must plan properly today to assure adequate water for the future. According to engineering experts we have two choices.

A. Marin County could tie in with the Corps of Engineers Dry Creek Flood Control Plan which would necessitate a major dam in the Sonoma County area. Even though this has not yet been authorized by Congress, it apparently is the plan favored by the present directors of the MMWD.

B. Marin County could obtain water from the already authorized North Bay Aqueduct which is the State of California Water Plan. This water would cost far less than the Dry Creek Flood Control Plan. Plan B, however, involves a deadline, Dec. 31, 1963. If the MMWD directors do not take positive action on this plan soon, other counties will be getting the water which we will need so badly.

SURPLUS WATER DISTRICT LANDS

I believe that surplus lands, such as the area behind Deer Park School, should be sold to the State Division of Beaches and Parks. The county's rapid growth demands that areas of this type should be set aside for recreational and scenic purposes for the entire family to use and enjoy. Access roads and easements for pipes, etc., could easily be protected in the sales contracts.

Leasing contracts for land used by certain country clubs, etc., should be re-examined before being renewed, with some thought given to present property values.

FISCAL PLANNING

The proposed 1961-62 Fiscal Planning Program for the MMWD, dated June 1961, shows revenues of $2,520,300 and expenses totaling $2,750,360—a deficit of $230,000 for the period.

The report states "An increase in our minimum charge from $1.50 to $2.00 and an increase in our base rate of 5% would result in increased revenue of approximately $300,000 per year."

Undoubtedly this calls for action . . . elimination of unnecessary expenses or a rate increase. Apparently the present directors anticipate an increase and feel this would be better announced AFTER the election.

These are just a few of the problems which have developed under the current MMWD Board's direction. In my opinion, it is TIME FOR A CHANGE in the make-up of this Board.

New President St. Rita's Guild Also An Accomplished Milliner

Mrs. Daniel M. Miller will be installed president of St. Rita's Women's Guild of Fairfax at ceremonies Monday in the parish hall.

Mrs. Miller, who has been a member for three years, has served the guild as hospitality chairman, chairman and recording secretary. To help raise funds to assist in paying the parochial debt the guild will hold luncheon-fashion shows, rummage sales and assist with the annual parish dinner dance, she announces.

Mary Miller also is active in the Fairfax Guild of the Boy

Science Museum, Fairfax Guild of Sunny Hills and works with Brownie Troop 185. She and her husband, who have been Marin residents for three and a half years, are parents of a ten-year-old daughter, Lisa Welles Miller.

The new guild president is an accomplished milliner, making her own hats and teaching others how as an avocation. She also derives great enjoyment from entertaining in her home, gardening with her husband, a retired U.S. Navy captain, and from her daughter's Scout work.

Mrs. Alfred Rustice is in charge of the installation and the Rev. Jeremiah V. Gleeson, pastor of St. Rita's, will install the following officers:

Mesdames Miller, president; William C. Sullivan, vice president; Gordon D. Raeside, Jr., recording secretary; Harold Skaggs, financial secretary; Louis Pfaff, treasurer; Orville Kemp, auditor. Members of the board are Mesdames William Kessel, Rellis Dorius, Kenneth Finn, Ernest Legnitto, Robert Witts.

Mrs. Miller has announced her committee chairmen, Mesdames L. J. Beauchamp, Thomas Gaona, Martin T. Fredericks, William C. Sullivan, Jack E. Herrero, John W. Sue Niederholzer To Graduate, Wed

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

These are exciting days in the Gus Niederholzer home in Kentfield. The Niederholzers' daughter, Susan, will be graduated from University of California June 9 and on June 13 she will become the bride of Carl James Finn Jr. at a nuptial mass at St. Anselm's Church, Ross. The high noon wedding will be followed by a reception at the Meadow Club.

Mrs. Mert Hipsley of Ross will entertain at a shower for Sue on Friday. A recent event was the luncheon-shower given by Mrs. Benedict Giusto of San Anselmo. Sue's Sigma Kappa sorority sisters gave her a surprise shower at the Piedmont home of Barbara Whitby.

The Niederholzers honored their daughter and fiancé at a cocktail party and buffet supper attended by family members and close friends.

Jim, as the future benedict is known, is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Finn of Sausalito. He has many relatives in Sacramento and his uncle's wife, Mrs. Howard Reese, who lives in the capitol city, is planning a luncheon for Sue.

Sue's sister, Nancy, a Delta Gamma at San Jose College, will be maid of honor at the wedding and Jim's sister, Mrs. John Koenig Jr. of Sausalito will be a bridesmaid. Constance Giordano of San Rafael, who was graduated from Dominican College Tuesday, will be a bridesmaid as will Sharon Sousa, who is attending pre-med school at University of California in San Francisco.

Jim has named as his best man, Stephen Buckley of Honolulu, formerly of Sausalito, a boyhood friend. Jim, who is in the real estate business in San Francisco, where he and Sue will live after their marriage, attended University of San Francisco and was graduated from San Francisco City College.

RADCLIFFE alumnae were entertained at a luncheon today at the home of Mrs. Joseph C. Marshall of Tiburon. Mrs. Esther C. Whitman of Belvedere was a co-hostess. Following the luncheon Robert Sheeks of the Asia foundation spoke on "Science and Public Policy in Asia." He stressed the need in undeveloped countries of building up their man power and human resources so they can use modern machinery. Mr. and Mrs. Sheeks live on the Belvedere Lagoon. She is a graduate of Radcliffe.

A REUNION in Paris is being planned by Miss Edwina Codoni and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leary (Josephine Codoni) all of San Rafael. Miss Codoni leaves June 20 for a trip around the world. She is principal of Short and Gallinas schools. Josephine is on the teaching staff of Santa Margarita School. The Learys are flying to Europe June 16. Miss Codoni is flying to Honolulu where she'll visit friends, then to Japan for a 10 days tour. She'll spend three days in Hong Kong and Manila, then go to Singapore, Bangkok, Rangoon, capital of Burma and to India, visiting the largest cities. From there Miss Codoni will fly to Karachi, capital of Pakistan. Her next stop will be in Cairo. She'll see the pyramids and take a cruise on the Nile. In Luxor she'll view the temple ruins of ancient Thebes and then go to Beirut, Tripoli, Damascus, Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Jericho, Jordan, Nazareth, Tel Aviv, then to Istanbul, Turkey and to Athens. After touring Greece, Miss Codoni will fly to Paris to meet the Learys. Miss Codoni visited the countries during her other European tour where the Learys are going, Portugal, Spain, Switzerland and Italy.

After a stay in Paris, the threesome will tour the Scandinavian countries, then the Learys will fly to Ireland and Miss Codoni will tour Scotland. They'll meet again in London and after sightseeing there will take the polar route home. They'll stop off for two days in Anchorage, Alaska.

Mrs. Joseph (Eudora) Codoni of San Rafael, mother of Miss Codoni and Mrs. Leary, is also making travel plans. With Mrs. Nell McIsaac of Nicasio, the cousin of her late husband, Mrs. Codoni will go to the World Fair in Seattle and to Vancouver and Victoria in Canada.

EARLENE LEIF

Earlene Leif, Hobert Hass Will Marry In Late Summer

Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Leif of Kentfield are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Earlene, to Robert Hass of San Francisco.

The bride-elect attended the University of California where she was affiliated with Chi Omega sorority and was graduated from Dominican College.

She is the sister of Carol and Cheryl Leif of Kentfield.

The future bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hass of Kentfield, is in his senior year at St. Mary's College, Moraga. He is the brother of Fred, Claire and James Hass of San Francisco.

The wedding will be an event of late summer.

Eusdances To Be Feted At Dinner

Dr. and Mrs. William Eusdance of Mill Valley will be honored at a dinner party tomorrow given by Mrs. Barnette Robinson and her sister, Miss Priscilla Pittenger, a professor at San Francisco State College, at the Robinson home in Mill Valley.

Dr. Eusdance will go to England with his family on a Fulbright fellowship during his sabbatical from San Francisco State College. Dr. Eusdance, his wife, a noted harpsichord player, and their children Linda and Mark, students at Tamalpais High School, will leave Marin at the close of school to spend the year in England and nearby countries.

About 16 guests will attend the farewell dinner party.

VOTERS—TAXPAYERS

Are you Southern Marin taxpayers happy over the extra discriminatory taxes you have paid the past two years because of the assessor's abortive "cycle" reappraisal program? How about you San Anselmo, Ross, Kentfield, Larkspur and Corte Madera taxpayers—are you happy over this sort of appraisal? You San Rafael and adjacent taxpayers—you have just received your bad news—are you happy over the appraisal increases that will cost you much more taxes this year? You Novato and North Marin taxpayers—the assessor states that you will get the same happy treatment next year—is this what you want?

Decorator Colors Are Newest For Exteriors

CHICAGO (UPI)—Decorator colors—deep greens and turquoise, red, navy, copper, gold, russet and charcoal—are the newest for house exteriors.

Violet and fuchsia, too, once strictly indoors colors, are coming outside, thanks to newly-developed pigments making the once highly unstable violet tones resistant to sun and weather fading.

Where and how do you use decorator colors on the outside of a house? In most cases, for trim only, advised color stylist Margaret Hutchison and she urged going particularly easy on the potent violet tones.

Here are some of her suggestions.

A violet front door on a pale pink house with white trim can be highly decorative. Or try violet shutters on an aqua or pale blue house with all other trim white.

Perfect accent colors for natural stone, brick or wood homes are the rich copper, gold, russet and charcoal tones.

The color of the roof should be a determining color in selecting a trim color. If the roof is a strong color, such as red, blue or green, the same color looks good as a trim.

For a white house, Miss Hutchison recommended deep emerald, sharp shamrock green or dark turquoise trim and roof where possible. Bright navy and red accents, however, provide a jaunty, nautical look for a white seaside or lake cottage. Navy accents are smart, too, for a light blue house.

The best decorator color for the body of the house, advised Miss Hutchison, is charcoal. Usually, it's set off with a spanking white trim and white or red front door, but for a change, Miss Hutchison suggested, "why not paint the door a rich golden or copper hue, or—for real punch—make it a lively shamrock green."

At least one paint manufacturer offers exterior and interior paints in matching decorator colors to permit coordinated color schemes in glass-walled or many windowed areas.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BRICKBATS to all the people of Marin who didn't go to Marin Art and Garden Center's open house Memorial Day and as a result missed an enjoyable afternoon.

A BOUQUET to Charles M. Cooney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Cooney of Kentfield, for his appointment to the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y.

A BOUQUET to Aura M. Estes on his retirement from San Rafael High School after 35 years there teaching chemistry and 40 as an educator.

BRICKBATS to pet owners who throw deceased dogs and cats into garbage cans or out onto the highways. Marin County Humane Society is available, you know.

BOUQUETS (again) to another pet owner, Mike McLean of San Rafael, whose bloodhounds located the body of a 7-year-old Modesto girl, in another of their public service achievements.

MARIN LOOKS AT POLITICS

Democratic Big Guns Deplore Lack Of Women On Gardiner Teams

By CHAPIN A. DAY

The battle for seats on the Democratic County Central Committee is turning into a real donnybrook. Democrats are forming into three groups. One, which was discussed here last Saturday, is composed of the two "teams" and their supporters who have been encouraged by former county chairman Sam Gardiner. The second group, banded together "in self-defense," is plugging generally for re-election of the incumbents. The third group is trying to stay out of the fight, "we're just trying to do a job and not get involved."

The big guns of the Democratic Party, State Chairman Roger Kent and National Committeewoman Elizabeth "Libby" Smith, both jumped in on the side of the incumbents.

"Libby" is more than a little upset that Gardiner would attempt to "campaign to keep any woman from being elected" to the central committee. "Apparently he's intent on becoming a political general without any army."

She called it "sad" that Gardiner should consider women Democrats "second class members of the party. Politics segregated by sex is extinct everywhere." Marin has "hundreds of active women Democrats and we would be in real trouble without their leadership and talent. It is incredible that Sam Gardiner wants to get rid of them."

ROGER KENT also criticized the absence of women on Gardiner's "teams."

"There aren't any more effective or hard working Democrats in the state than the women on the central committee," he declared. "Although Marin constitutes only half an Assembly district, under the driving leadership of one of the women, Marin doorbell ringers have collected around $5,000 a year in Dollars for Democrats. That is more than is raised in any congressional district in Northern California."

And Kent was disturbed too that other incumbents weren't on the "teams."

"Under present leadership in the central committee," the state chairman declared, "in election after election Marin's percentage of improvement (from a Democrat's point of view) has led the state. In 1960, President Kennedy's Marin vote was 89 per cent of the Democratic registration. That was five points higher than the next highest county."

In addition, "Marin's unity between official and unofficial organizations is a model for the state and should be continued," he declared.

Who says intra-party politics isn't interesting?

SPEAKING OF battles, Republican central committee-men are having their battles, too. David Winslow, county chairman, is running in a field of 10 from which six will be elected. Winslow is 10th on the ballot.

Worrying about it, he pulled out a cigarette and a package of matches to light it. They were Nixon matches, although a central committee doesn't endorse in the primary. However, they were "Nixon for President" matches, either left over from an old campaign or looking to the future.

Francis Measure Held 'Safeguard'

EDITOR,

Independent-Journal:

"Chip" Day's editorial giving us assurance that the Louis Francis Initiative to combat Communism is certain to make the November ballot is most encouraging.

For your information, signatures are still being solicited here in Marin and no doubt throughout California; also Attorney General Mosk's feelings seem to lead toward being against it. One prospective signer contacted Mosk and was advised absolutely NOT to sign it. However, he is up for re-election and it is now time to sit on the fence and play the old "double talk" game: "I'm for it but I'm really against it."

The First and Fifth Amendments have been made an object of ridicule and neglect. Used almost entirely as a shield for subversiveness. Therefore, the necessity of the Louis Francis Amendment. It will restore the First and Second Amendments to the full power for which they were originally written up and made into laws.

The dubious political struggle here in Marin; and I most certainly refer to the third district in particular, has amazed and disgusted a great many people. Peter Behr is rushing Schultism (Home Rule—Mosk explains) down our throats to the limit. In view of the fact the leaders of the recall without cause against former Supervisor Blair was substantially led by Democrats and supported by atheists and double-talk artists, I switched from a life-long Democrat to a Republican in support of Joe Shell for governor, and I am most certainly 100 per cent for the Louis Francis Amendment and did fine in securing signatures on the petitions I circulated.

Contrary to usual procedure, this time we will have to clean house from the top down: Sacramento to Marin. God knows California and Marin are long overdue for a good cleaning up politically and dog-tired of double talk.

Shut-In Day Is Tomorrow

EDITOR,

Independent-Journal:

The first Sunday of June each year has been set aside as National Shut-In Day by a Congressional committee. To most of us, this coming Sunday will be an ordinary, every-week type Sunday. A day for a drive in the park, a day for a round of golf or maybe a day for a family picnic.

The true meaning of National Shut-In Day will be understood best by the approximately three million people here in our country who are totally handicapped and the additional four million who are at least 50 per cent disabled.

The idea of having a day set aside for the thoughts of these people is better to acquaint the general public with the problems, the hopes and the dreams of this segment of our population.

How many times in a year do we go out of our way to help a person who is either bed-ridden, is in a wheelchair or otherwise handicapped? As a matter of fact how many of us EVER take their thoughts to heart?

You may say to yourself: "Hmmm, what's that guy talking about? I give to the United Crusade; I help the Polio Foundation, and gosh, only last week I sent a check to the Cancer Fund." That's fine, keep up the good work . . . all contributions gratefully accepted, as the saying goes.

There are a lot of us who don't think about one very important thing, though: How about a personal visit to a handicapped person, a shut-in? Unless you have a relative or friend who is handicapped, you can't possibly know the joy of paying a little personal visit to one who is disabled. What a morale booster a visit can be . . .

When you encounter a handicapped person by himself, he may appear unsure of himself. Make him feel a part of your group. Never judge him by his DISability, but more by his ability or CAPability. Given half a chance, most of the handicapped will measure up mentally and intellectually with almost anyone you now associate with . . .

If National Shut-in Day can bring just a little happiness and a little more understanding to the handicapped part of our population; if it will make a few people stop and thank God for their own health, instead of taking it for granted as so many of us do; and, finally, if it will make the majority of us realize truly that there are millions in our country who wish to lead as nearly a normal life as their affliction will allow (and it is our moral responsibility to help them do this) . . . then this day, now called National Shut-in Day, has served its purpose.

Howard Smith, Miami savant, tells about a man who had been manager of a big golf layout and suddenly got a chance to run a brand new, 16-story hospital. The third day he was there a lady about to have a baby was rushed to the hospital in an ambulance. She never made it. Her son—a healthy, bouncing, eight-pound baby—was delivered on the lawn.

A week later, the proud father received a bill which included this item: Use of Delivery Room, $50. "I won't pay," he complained to the new manager. "My wife never got as far as the delivery room."

The manager agreed that the father had a point, and tore up the bill. But he sent a new one immediately. This one read: "Green fees, $50." The father knew when he was licked. He paid up.

Harpo Marx, who talks—and very eloquently, too—offstage, tells about an indignant member of a Palm Springs golf club who spluttered, "The Board of Directors just offered me fire hundred dollars to resign. I told 'em to go climb a tree." "You're absolutely right," approved the man who used the adjoining locker. "Hold out another two weeks and I bet they'll offer you a thousand."

Just As Stocks Hit Bottom A Man Walked In With 'Coroner' Cards

It was a dark day in Marin, as a downcast crowd packed the Irving Lundborg stockbroker's office in San Rafael.

The group looked like a funeral procession as stocks dropped to near panic proportions. Then, in bounced an energetic young man, who began passing out little cards with the word "Coroner" emblazoned in bold black letters.

Everyone glared; they thought he was playing a cruel joke. Then the glares turned to smiles as the crowd realized the man was Forrest Johnson, who is running for County Coroner against incumbent Frank Keaton.

Unlike 1929, no one jumped out of the window. It wouldn't have done much good, anyway. The Lundborg offices are on the street floor.

ELECTION IS next Tuesday, and the political dopesters are trying to get a picture of who's running where at this point. But it's a rough one to decipher.

In North Marin, it's Supervisor William Gnos and Mayor Wayne Womack running neck and neck.

The consensus seems to be that Assessor Bert Broemmell holds the edge over contender Charles Burtz, a retired Navy captain out of Corte Madera.

THE RACE for Treasurer-Tax Collector will probably go into a runoff in November. Contractor Russ Lauterwasser and retired printer and former Mayor Gordon Strawbridge got off to a fast start in the campaign. But the latest indication is that senior accountant Stan Fontez is coming up fast in the home stretch. The fourth man in the race is Lucien Miller, deputy auditor. No one man is expected to get the majority, in which case the top two will run off in November.

IN A COUPLE of Novato precincts they got the sample ballots mixed up. Republican ballots went to Democratic voters, and vice versa.

County Clerk George Gnos, whose office mailed the ballots, spotted the error right away. Gnos got one of the "reversed" ballots himself.

DeVERE BAKER and his Lehi aren't the only ones who can drift out into the high seas.

Dr. R. E. Erickson of Kentfield made it all the way to Hawaii on a 30-foot trimaran he built in his own back yard. And he's quietly back in town, acting as if nothing had happened.

The doctor made it in 16 days on sturdy sails and no motor. With him were designer-author and expert sailor Art Piver, and Bob Coblentz of Oceanside.

It wasn't exactly like a Lurline sailing, the doctor admits, but the trimaran rode the 40-foot waves like a feather all the way.

THE MOST embarrassed drunken driver of the week turned out to be Lyle Colbath of Toole, Utah. He came all the way to San Francisco to attend a three-day Safety Conference, then proceeded to forget the safety rules by weaving across Golden Gate Bridge.

He paid his fine, assured the Marin judge he'd take in another session on safety, then go "straight" back to Utah.

Red China's Relationship To India, Russia Changing As U.S.'s Does

WASHINGTON—Our own China policy has matured during the past ten years. For one thing, we have given up the notion that mainland China is going to be reconquered by an offensive staged from Formosa. That standing provocation has been reduced to zero, and the administration has every intention, I believe, of keeping it at zero.

Secondly, we have learned the lesson of Gen. MacArthur's disastrous march to the Yalu River in the Korean war, which is that the Red Chinese will react violently and convulsively to the presence of United States military power on their frontier.

We are now applying what we learned in Korea to what confronts us in Laos. We had scrapped the notion, long cherished in some Washington circles, that Laos could and should be made into an American "bastion" up against the Chinese frontier.

WE ARE NOW ready to settle for a neutral Laos, which does not mean a Laos with a government that is mathematically equidistant between Sen. Goldwater and Mao Tse-tung. It means rather a Laos which tries to avoid entangling alliances and to live a quiet life.

The changes in our own policy are running parallel with changes in the relation between Red China and India on the one hand and between Red China and the Soviet Union on the other.

This change manifested itself last autumn in the UN debate about the admission of Red China. We had in it a comfortable majority which felt as we do, not on the question of seating Red China but, on our refusal to expel Nationalist China.

EVEN MORE importantly, the change is manifesting itself in Southeast Asia. The striking and extraordinary feature of the situation there is that we are dealing with the Soviet Union, which is about as far away from Southeast Asia as we are, rather than with Red China which is on the frontier.

It looked very much as if the Russians were acting in this area in order that they, and not the Red Chinese, should play the deciding role in dealing with us.

There is fair reason to suppose that the Russians are working to prevent a Chinese-American conflict which could lead to war. In such a war they would be faced with the choice of abandoning their ally or of fighting the United States.

In order to prevent such a war they seem to be using such influence as they have, which is not omnipotent, to further the neutralization of Laos, and eventually of all the southern borderlands facing Red China.

IT IS NOT unimportant, it seems to me, that they are even preparing to sell MIGs on easy terms to India, which is struggling to contain the expansion of Red China.

So it may not be going too far to say that under the pressure of Chinese expansionary actions—in the north against the Soviet Union, against India in the south, and against Southeast Asia—there is coming into being a "de facto" coalition to contain the expansion.

Hit-Run War In West New Guinea

By DAVID L. BOWEN

"If they would only stop and fight we could handle them easily."

That wistful remark was made last week in the village of Mamor in West New Guinea by a Dutch colonel pausing briefly on an inspection tour of Royal Dutch Marines engaged in deadly hide-and-seek warfare with Indonesian paracommandos.

Following the pattern of the world's most recent brush-fire wars, this one is being fought according to the guerrilla handbook. The invading Indonesians — last reported to number some 400 and referred to as "volunteers" in Jakarta — arrived by parachute in small groups. They have not set up conventional supply lines, nor do they wage a broad offensive. They hit and run.

According to Royal Dutch Marine Col. G. K. R. De Roos only some are soldiers. Others, he says, are armed civilians who don't fight but "want to stay at liberty to work on the Papuans to stir them up and to have them rise up at the right time so they all can attack us."

The New Guinea jungle, mountainous and matted with thick undergrowth, provides ideal cover for guerrillas.

"Our men could pass right by a dozen Indonesian paratroopers and they would never see them," said Colonel De Roos.

The Indonesian strategy seems to be to drop in more and more bands of guerrillas to thoroughly disrupt Dutch control, isolate the Dutch in villages and then attack the villages one by one.

They have started on areas farthest from the Dutch strong-points at Hollandia and Biak, and closest to their own neighboring islands.

Ever since Indonesia was granted independence from the Dutch and Indonesians to has maintained that West New Guinea belongs to it. The Dutch counter that the 800-mile long western half of the island, which they call Papua, was never part of the Indonesian archipelago. Australia administers the eastern half of the island.

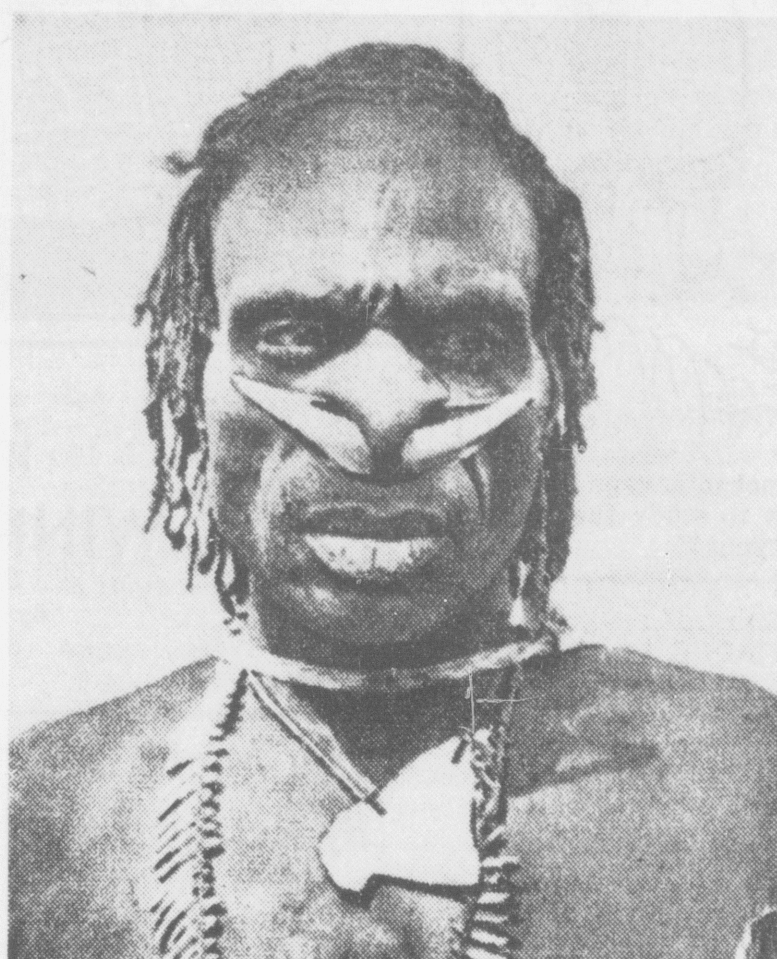

The Dutch freely admit they have no intention of holding onto New Guinea forever. The problem, now being complicated with bloodshed, boils down to how they can turn loose gracefully. They insist they will be happy to leave when Papua can be run for and by the Papuans themselves. They have said they would agree to a plebiscite under United Nations auspices to permit the 700,000 natives to choose their now future.

Last week U.N. Secretary-General Thant appealed to the Dutch and Indonesians to return to the conference table on the basis of proposals put forth by U. S. diplomat Ellsworth Bunker.

The Bunker proposals, as published at The Hague, call for transfer of New Guinea's administration to a U. N.-appointed government and then to Indonesian control after two years. They also call for an eventual plebiscite for the Papuan population to decide whether they want to be Indonesian territory or otherwise.

TWO PAPUANS—These are Papuans who live in the Vogelkop Peninsula and Fak Fak area of West New Guinea where invading Indonesian paratroopers are located. The Dutch say the guerrillas are on a fifth column mission to convince Papuans they should help throw out Netherlands residents. (AP Wirephoto)

AMBOINESE POSE HOLLAND PROBLEM

Trouble In West New Guinea Spotlights Plight Of South Moluccan Refugees

AMSTERDAM (UPI)—Thirteen years after Indonesia's war for independence from the Netherlands, the fate of the Indonesians who remained loyal to the Dutch remains a problem for authorities here.

About 24,000 Ambonese now live in the Netherlands. The crisis between The Netherlands and Indonesia over Dutch West New Guinea has brought renewed attention to their plight, and has cast light on a problem that might have to be faced with some New Guinea natives if the Indonesians take over the island.

The Ambonese in Holland grew out of a nucleus of 4,000 men in the Dutch colonial army. They had fought both the Japanese and the Indonesian nationalists. When the independence war ended with President Sukarno's victory, they were granted the temporary status of regular Dutch army personnel and were permitted to come to the Netherlands.

With their families, they formed a group of 13,000. The intervening years have not solved their problem but they have doubled the size of the group.

Both Dutch authorities and the Ambonese regarded their move a temporary one, pending the establishment of a republic in their native islands. They were first housed in camps, but now are being provided with new homes and good educations.

During the past year, about 500 Ambonese have forsaken The Netherlands for an uncertain future back in Indonesia. Sukarno promised an amnesty to anyone returning. They brought back as many tools as they could but knew a hard life awaited them among their former enemies.

Political leaders of the Ambonese colony refuse to be integrated as Dutch citizens, preferring to keep alive hopes of someday forming an independent state in the South Moluccan Islands, their home area. But there is little chance for this as long as the Sukarno regime lasts.

Dr. Alvarez Manusama, political leader of most of the refugees, operates his "mission" of the South Moluccan Republic from a two-room apartment in Rotterdam.

"The Dutch government is more or less stuck with us," he explains. "At first they thought we would eventually get out of this cold and windy country, Sukarno or not."

Behind The News

A Weekly Page of Background Information
Independent-Journal, Saturday, June 2, 1962 9

Manusama fled his homeland in 1949 when Sukarno's troops crushed his republic. He first continued his fight against Indonesia from the island of Ceram, forming an "army of rags," but was forced to give up and come here. Ceram is one of the South Moluccan islands.

Manusama said it took Sukarno eight years to eliminate the various rebel groups against him, and he was successful with "all but one — Manusama's followers."

We do not just oppose Sukarno's regime," he said. "We fight for freedom in our own territory under our own blue-white-green-red flag."

In 1952, the government formed a department of Ambonese welfare. Four years later, it became clear the Dutch no longer could regard the refugees as temporary residents.

The government's five-year plan for resettlement, now well underway, will move the Ambonese from their shanty towns to new houses, where they will pay a rent of about one dollar a week.

"The social problem is nearly solved, except for a few large camps where the community, through years of isolation, is very strongly knit," Van Raalte said. "These people, especially the women, are glad to go to new homes. By 1964 we hope to have reached a complete solution. The Ambonese will then no longer be under government care, but can be regarded as normal Dutch citizens."

Hickenlooper Becoming Critic Of JFK

Senator Is Developing A Hard Line

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Republican Policy Committee under the generalship of Iowa's Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper is developing a new hard line criticizing President John F. Kennedy.

What might be described as the live and let live policies of his predecessor, the late Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, toward the Democratic president have given away under Hickenlooper to tough attacks that promise to grow hotter as the fall congressional election nears.

The Iowa senator, a quiet spoken sort, has left no doubt as to where he stands in opposition to almost all of Kennedy's domestic programs.

Hickenlooper has gone about the country saying that Kennedy's campaign promises of a balanced budget, full employment and a revitalized America "have been tossed into the ash can." He has accused the President of "encouraging and stimulating segments of our people to demand more and more from government."

Recently he attacked what he called Kennedy's use of "the coercive power of government to force price fixing, regardless of costs," in the steel price rollback. He said the Kennedy farm program has been "a dismal and costly failure."

These views are being reflected in Republican Policy Committee pronouncements, now being drawn under the direction of David S. Teeple, new staff director.

As a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Hickenlooper seems less inclined than some other Republican leaders to go along with all of Kennedy's foreign policy moves. He gave Kennedy some deep trouble before the Senate finally passed the U.N. bond purchases authority.

At 66, Hickenlooper is seeking election to a fourth Senate term. While he likes to describe himself as a moderate, Americans for Constitutional Action, a conservative group, rated him as voting 84 per cent for proposals they favored. This stacked up with the 99 per cent rating the organization gave Sen. Barry Goldwater, (R-Ariz.).

The 15-member policy com-

BOURKE B. HICKENLOOPER

GEORGE D. AIKEN

mittee has a majority of members who lean to the conservative side. Whether it is getting more conservative as the November election approaches is a matter of debate.

Sen. John Tower (R-Tex.) said he thinks there is a trend among Republican candidates toward conservatism which is reflected in the policy group.

Tower, a conservative, added that all factions of the party were united in opposing what the Republicans call Kennedy's attempt to build up executive power.

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) who carries a liberal label, agreed in a separate interview that Republicans are apprehensive about Kennedy's intentions in the field of executive authority. He attributed the policy committee's new tough line to election year developments.

"The President is sending us a lot of proposals of all kinds," he said. "We are collecting more and more ammunition against them. And in an election year we have more incentive to fire it off."

A STOCK MARKET VIEW

American Economy Prosperous But At The Same Time Stagnant

By WALTER LIPPMANN

WASHINGTON — Prices on the stock market have been falling sharply since the middle of March, and it is difficult to believe that the heavy selling is merely a technical "correction" which will soon end. It is said in official circles in Washington, and indeed it has been said by the president himself, that the outlook for business is good and does not justify the pessimism of the stock market. But there are reasons for thinking that this is too rosy a view.

Others are saying, particularly in Republican partisan circles, that the slump is due to a loss of confidence by businessmen ever since the president cracked down on Mr. Blough and the increase in the price of steel. The trouble with this piece of partisan mythology is that the bear market began on March 16 and it was only on April 11 — some 26 days later — that the president had his collision with Mr. Blough.

There can be no doubt, of course, that such massive selling as we are now witnessing is due to a loss of confidence by the owners in the future prospects of their securities. The question is what is causing this loss of confidence,

The most probable answer, it seems to me, is that there is a loss of confidence that the administration is fulfilling the promise to bring about something near to the full employment of capital and labor and a rising rate of economic growth.

What the stock market is saying, I submit, is that while there is a considerable recovery from the depths of the recession in 1961, the recovery is already being arrested although it is a long way from being completed. With unemployment at 5.5 per cent and with the utilization of steel plants at only 60 per cent, the American economy, although prosperous, is in fact stagnant.

It is beginning to look as if the Kennedy administration were repeating the pattern of the Eisenhower administration, with its three recessions brought on by the fact that each recovery was throttled down, as the only way to prevent inflation of prices, before the recovery was completed.

There is mounting evidence that those economists were right who told the administration last winter that it was making the mistake of trying to balance the budget too soon. It will be said that the budget is not balanced; it shows a deficit in fiscal 1962 of 7 billion dollars.

The administrative budget deals only with the money appropriated by Congress and spent by the government departments. It leaves out the trust funds, such as Social Security and the highway funds, which run to 25 billion dollars annually. It counts revenues when taxes are collected, not while they are accruing and being withheld for the payment of taxes.

For the impact of the Federal government on the economy, on inflation and recession, stagnation and growth, the budget that matters is the Department of Commerce.

Nobody looks at it except the economists and one of the greatest services that a public man could perform today would be to make the people understand the difference between the two budgets.

It is safe to predict that if present trends continue, the administration will have to go into action. It will have to take some of the strong measures which it was advised to take but did not dare to take some seven months or so ago.

Ironical Eichmann Twist—'Kind Act'

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The most notorious mass murderer in modern history committed a fatal error one day in an act of kindness.

Adolf Eichmann had sponsored the execution of an estimated six million European Jews during World War II but as in the case of many cruel men he was a good husband.

The Jews who had sworn to track down Eichmann knew that he never forgot to buy flowers for his wife on their wedding anniversary.

The man whom they were stalking resembled Eichmann but they were not convinced until the day of his wedding anniversary. When he bought flowers they stepped in, kidnaped him and took him to Israel for trial.

But retribution was not final until shortly before midnight Thursday when the state of Israel hanged Eichmann for his crimes against the Jewish people.

Worst Stock Tumble Since 1929

The stock market, which had been riding high, took its worst tumble since 1929. Prices dropped by 20.8 billion dollars. Many inexperienced investors panicked and hurriedly dumped their stocks.

Then the market came back to life and started climbing and at week's end had leveled off.

Defense Stockpiling Scandal Hits

Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri charged that the Billie Sol Estes scandal was insignificant when compared to losses caused by defense stockpiling during the Eisenhower administration.

Symington charged that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's Secretary of Treasury George M. Humphrey retained an interest in nickel contracts while serving in the cabinet.

Eisenhower, hopping mad, said: "If Humphrey ever did a dishonest thing in his life I'm ready to mount on the cross and you can put the nails and spear in me."

Other interesting news:

Goodman — Clarinetist Benny Goodman took his band to Russia and scored a big hit in Moscow.

Holiday — More than 190 persons were killed in traffic accidents or died in other mishaps during the brief Memorial Day holiday.

X-15 — Major Bob White made the highest re-entry in the history of X-15 flights. White descended from a 129,000-foot altitude at a 22-degree "angle of attack."

THE NEIGHBORS

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, June 2, the 153rd day of the year with 212 to follow.

The moon is new. The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Venus.

On this day in history: In 1862, Gen. Robert E. Lee took over the command of the Confederate armies of Eastern Virginia and North Carolina. In 1924, Congress conferred citizenship upon all American Indians.

In 1953, Queen Elizabeth II was crowned in Westminster Abbey, London, by the Archbishop of Canterbury. A thought for the day: Russian novelist Turgenev said: "I agree with no man's opinions. I have some of my own."

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You Might Gain Some Time By Refusing First Trick

Don't be in a hurry to win the first trick if only one opponent can successfully continue the attack. You may gain time by refusing the first trick if the lead is then in the safe opponent's hand.

West opened the eight of spades, dummy played low, and East put up the ten. The rest of the play then varied when this hand was played a year or so ago in a New York tournament.

HASTE NOT GOOD
In most cases, South won the first trick with the ace of spades. Nothing good came of this unseemly haste.

Declarer usually continued with two rounds of trumps and the singleton diamond from dummy.

West won with the ace of diamonds and led another spade, whereupon East defeated the contract with two spade tricks and the ace of clubs.

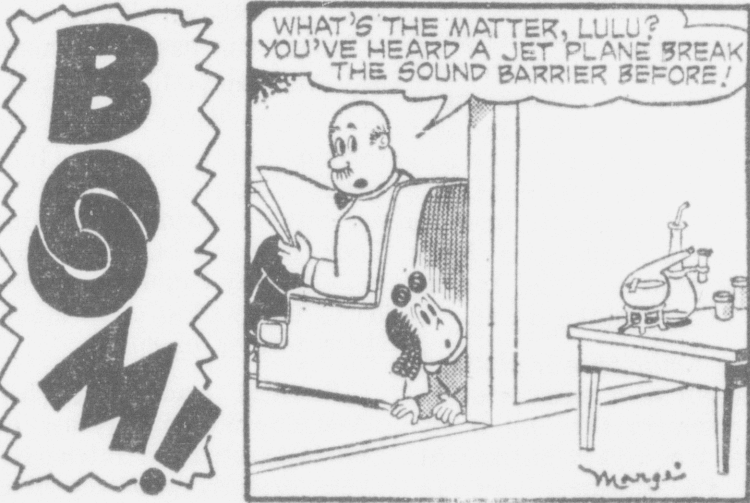

A few players say the value of letting East hold the first trick. East couldn't continue spades since that would give dummy's queen a trick.

CAREFUL PLAY
Whatever East returned, South could set up a diamond trick to discard a spade from dummy. Careful play would then limit the loss to one spade trick instead of two.

For example, if East returns a diamond at the second trick, South plays the king to force out the ace. Back comes a spade, and South wins with the ace.

South cashes the queen of diamonds to discard a spade from dummy, and leads a club

Ray Brusati Wins Top Honors At Greenbrae

Ray Brusati, bowling in the Greenbrae Lane's "540" Swiss League has put together games of 205-221-223 and 180 to win top honors with an 829 series.

Jack Parson's 188-186-216 and 209, a 799 series, was good enough for second place honors.

High single of the week was a 265 thrown by Ed Mudrick in the Nite Owls league. In the Greenbrae Mercantile Fives League, Ed Clinton of Team Number 5, shot a 623 series, bowling individual games of 196-171 and 256.

Greenbrae "540" Swiss — Ray Brusati 205, 221, 223—629; Jack Parson's 188-186-216 and 209, a 799 series, was good enough for second place honors.

Tiburon Ball Club To Play Tomorrow

It's still a question mark regarding the Tiburon Pelican's semi-pro baseball game tomorrow.

The Pelicans play either the San Francisco Red Sox or the AAA champion Gino Benedetti team of San Francisco at Judge Field, Tiburon, 2 p.m. And starting pitcher for the Pelicans will either be Buzz Wensloff, Mike Cooney or Fred DeMartini.

One thing is for sure: There will be a game, said Tiburon manager Ed Vigno, and "the big bats will be Bob Saap and Ron Stuart."

Wild Time In The Old Town

NEW YORK (UPI) — The joint was jumping last night when they threw a homecoming party for the San Francisco Giants at the Polo Grounds.

A roaring crowd of 53,742 showed up to watch the Giants pound out a 9-6 victory over the present occupants of the historic ball park, the New York Mets.

The crowd just could not figure out who it was for and cheered with equal fervor whenever Giant or Met connected.

They had plenty to roar about.

The Giants built up a 9-1 lead on the strength of four homers and Billy Pierce's classy hurling, but then hung on for dear life as the Mets fought back.

But the crowd, watching the Giants in the Polo Grounds for the first time since they defeated to San Francisco in 1957, gave its loudest ovation to Willie Mays, the incomparable centerfielder who sparked the Giants to pennants in 1951 and 1954.

Mays responded by clouting his 17th homer in the fifth.

Even so, he had to take a back seat to a couple of other sluggers, as far as last night's contest was concerned.

Willie McCovey powdered homers over the right field fence and the left field fence in his first two trips to the plate to stake the Giants to a 3-0 lead.

Then Jimmy Davenport, hitting a blue streak this year, clouted a bases-jammed round-tripper into the lower right field stands to highlight a five-run seventh.

Pierce got credit for his eighth win without a defeat, but yielded in the eighth when the Mets flexed their muscles. Felix Mantilla clouted a two-run blast off reliever Bob Bolin as five runs clattered across the plate.

Stu Miller finally put out the fire although there were two men on and Frank Thomas was the tying run when he ground out to end the game.

The Giants were to take on the Mets twice today with Jack Sanford and Jim Duffalo due to serve them up for Alvin Dark's troops.

Yesterday's win was the Giants' eighth in nine starts and yet San Francisco has lost ground to the Los Angeles Dodgers during the streak. The Dodgers two-timed Philadelphia to run their win string to 13 yesterday. When the smoke had cleared, the Dodgers and Giants were tied for first place.

Dodger Win Streak Longest

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The rampaging Los Angeles Dodgers were tied for first place in the National League with the San Francisco Giants today and riding the crest of their longest winning streak since 1953.

But there wasn't a glimmer of over confidence, at least on the managerial side.

"It's nice to be in first and it's nice to win 13 straight," said Manager Walt Alton last night after the Dodgers swept both halves of a two-night double-header from the Philadelphia Phillies, 11-4, 8-5.

But, the manager added, "It doesn't mean much. It's too early in the season to be overly happy. I don't think anybody is going to walk away with this league."

The victories put the Dodgers in a first place tie with San Francisco, five games in front of the pack.

The 13 game winning streak is the longest for the Dodgers since 1953 when they played out of Brooklyn. They won the pennant that year.

Alston, who joined the Dodgers in 1954, singled out Junior Gilliam and Willie Davis for special praise.

Davis scored from first base in the opener on Tommy Davis' routine single to center. The hit came with the bases loaded and counted three RBI.

Gilliam hit a home run in the opener. Then in the nightcap the third baseman sparked a double play when he picked up a grounder by Bob Wine.

Stan Williams won the opener, his fifth win in six decisions. In the nightcap, Don Drysdale won his eighth against three losses.

SANTA CLARA PACES BEAVERS IN TITLE RACE

SANTA CLARA (AP)—Santa Clara's Broncos battled Oregon State today for the District 8 NCAA baseball championship.

Sophomore Pete Magrini was to take the mound for the Broncos against Steve Clark for the Beavers.

Pitcher Bob Garibaldi and shortstop Ernie Fazio teamed up yesterday and handed the Beavers an 8-1 thrashing. Garibaldi hurled a four-hitter and struck out 16. Fazio belted a single, double, triple and home run.

The Broncos exploded for three runs in each of the third and fifth frames. Santa Clara's Tim Cullen smashed a two-run homer off reliever Phil Hatch. Southpaw Cecil Ira was the loser.

MEMPHIS OPEN

Player Looks Like Lion In This One

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Gary Player, South Africa's whiz of the pro golf circuit, held a one-stroke lead today as the $40,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament entered the crucial stages.

Player warmed to his game on the back nine in Friday's second round and carded a 35-31—66 over the 6,501-yard, 34-36 Colonial Country Club course. The round gave him a 36-hole total of 131 and a one-stroke lead over his closest challenger.

Steady Don January held the No. 2 spot after adding a 35-32—67 to his first round 65 for a 132.

Knotted in a tie for third place at 133 were Bruce Crampton (70-63), Tommy Jacobs (68-65), Gene Littler (66-67), Don Whitt (67-66) and Jay Hebert (68-65).

Favored Arnold Palmer,

still feeling a bad cold suffered last week, faded further behind with a 35-36—71, to go with his first round 71 for 142.

First round leader Gay Brewer slipped slightly with a 71 to go with his sizzling 64 of Thursday for a 135 total.

Compton Meet Tonight

COMPTON (UPI) — Some of the nation's top athletes, with a sprinkling of foreign stars, compete in a field of 150 tonight in the 23rd Compton Invitational Track and Field Meet.

Murray Halberg, 1960 5,000-meters champion from New Zealand, and Canada's young Bruce Kidd gave the meet an international flavor.

Halberg and Kidd will probably run one-two in the 5,000 meters, both having broken 14 minutes for this trying event.

The mile run has another New Zealander, John Davies, but America's Jim Beatty, with a best time of 3:58, is favored here.

Other events where top performances are anticipated include: The pole vault with Marine Lt. Dave Tork who has a pending world mark of 16 feet 2 inches. John Cramer of Washington, and George Davies of Tempe, Ariz.; the broad jump with world record holder Ralph Boston of Nashville, Tenn.; Darrell Horn of Adair Air Force Base, and Tony Watson of Oklahoma; the shot-put, Dallas Long of the University of Southern California, and Gary Gubner of New York U.; and the high jump's four seven-foot leapers—John Thomas of Boston University, Bob Avant, formerly of USC, Joe Faust of Mt. San Antonio College, and Australia's Colin Ridgway, now attending Lamar State in Texas.

Sausalitan Booked In County Jail For Grand Theft

A 26-year-old Sausalitan was booked in county jail shortly after noon yesterday on a charge of attempted grand theft after he was seen trying to make off with a $600 outboard motor from the Arques Shipyard.

The man, Roger Edward Packer, of 31 Bulkley Avenue, gave police no occupation.
Police Chief Howard Goerndt, said Packer awakened shipyard watchman Don Bailey at 12:30 a.m. when he drove his car onto the dock past
Bailey's house.

Bailey said Packer attempted to remove the motor from an Arques skiff. When Bailey accused him, he jumped into his car and sped away. Packer was identified later by Bailey for Sausalito police.

To Possess...

Electric kitchen built - ins, 2 baths, a fireplace that was obviously built by an artistic and proud mason. But from the first glance, this residence should charm you right out of your decision. Sounds like the price might be a little high? Not on your tintype! This anxious owner started out just a little over a month ago at $27,950. ($2,000 more than present price), and has reduced it without a fair market test. Comparable properties are selling for $27,000. The seller reminds us of his need for a fast sale. His reasons are personal and immediate. Why don't you let us prove there are still some GOOD BUYS on the Marin Market? Phone this afternoon and see something that we think is highly inviting and will probably sell for somewhat less than fair market value.

Boyle Park Due Jet Fighter

Mill Valley youngsters will soon have a retired Air Force Jet fighter plane to climb upon in Boyle Park.

This was announced today by Sherman LeDuc of American Legion Post 284, who said Legionnaires will meet with city

Nixon Campaign Signs Are Stolen

Theft of two "Nixon for Governor" signs from a campaign truck parked Wednesday night in the Corte Madera area near Highway 101 was reported by William D. Keeler of Mill Valley, special events chairman for the Marin County Nixon Committee.

A "professional job" with wire-cutters was done in detaching the hand painted four-by-six-foot signs, mounted on plywood on two-by-four-inch frames, said Keeler.

engineer Stanley M. Bala to decide upon a site for the 30,000-pound obsolete plane.

Legion members have voted to donate labor and materials to construct concrete abutments on which the aircraft would be permanently anchored.

The plane, which has been stripped of its engine and equipment, is to be delivered to Mill Valley from Hamilton Air Force Base. It is planned, LeDuc said, that it will be in place by June 15.

First planned to be placed on Project 17, the plane was changed to Boyle Park upon recommendations from city park employees for safety reasons and because it was deemed more convenient for small children.

Sanitation Meeting

The Sausalito - Marin City Sanitary District board will hold an adjourned meeting at 8 p.m. June 13 in the city hall. It will discuss a contract with the Albert-Lovett Corp. Designed to settle any damages that may occur as a result of the firm's trespassing on the district's sewer line.

Unfastened Seat Belt; Child Hurt

An unfastened seat belt was blamed Thursday for a "thick lip" suffered by a small child riding on the back seat of her mother's car.

San Rafael police said a car driven by former County Supervisor J. Walter Blair stopped for a red light at Third and C streets in San Rafael at 4:30 p.m. Blair's car was struck in the rear by one driven by Mrs. Robert Lee of 5 Fairway Drive, San Rafael.

Mrs. Lee's daughter, Kathleen, was thrown against the front seat. Her family doctor treated her swollen lip.

"I was going for such a short drive, I didn't bother to fasten the seat belt," Mrs. Lee said ruefully. There were no citations.

The Bay Inside A Building

There's the Sausalito with which the tourist is so familiar—the pretty little town with quaint shops, attractive homes perched on steep hillsides, pleasure boats bobbing alongside waterfront restaurants, the plaza with its splashing fountain.

And then there's the other side of Sausalito's split personality — industrial Marinship.

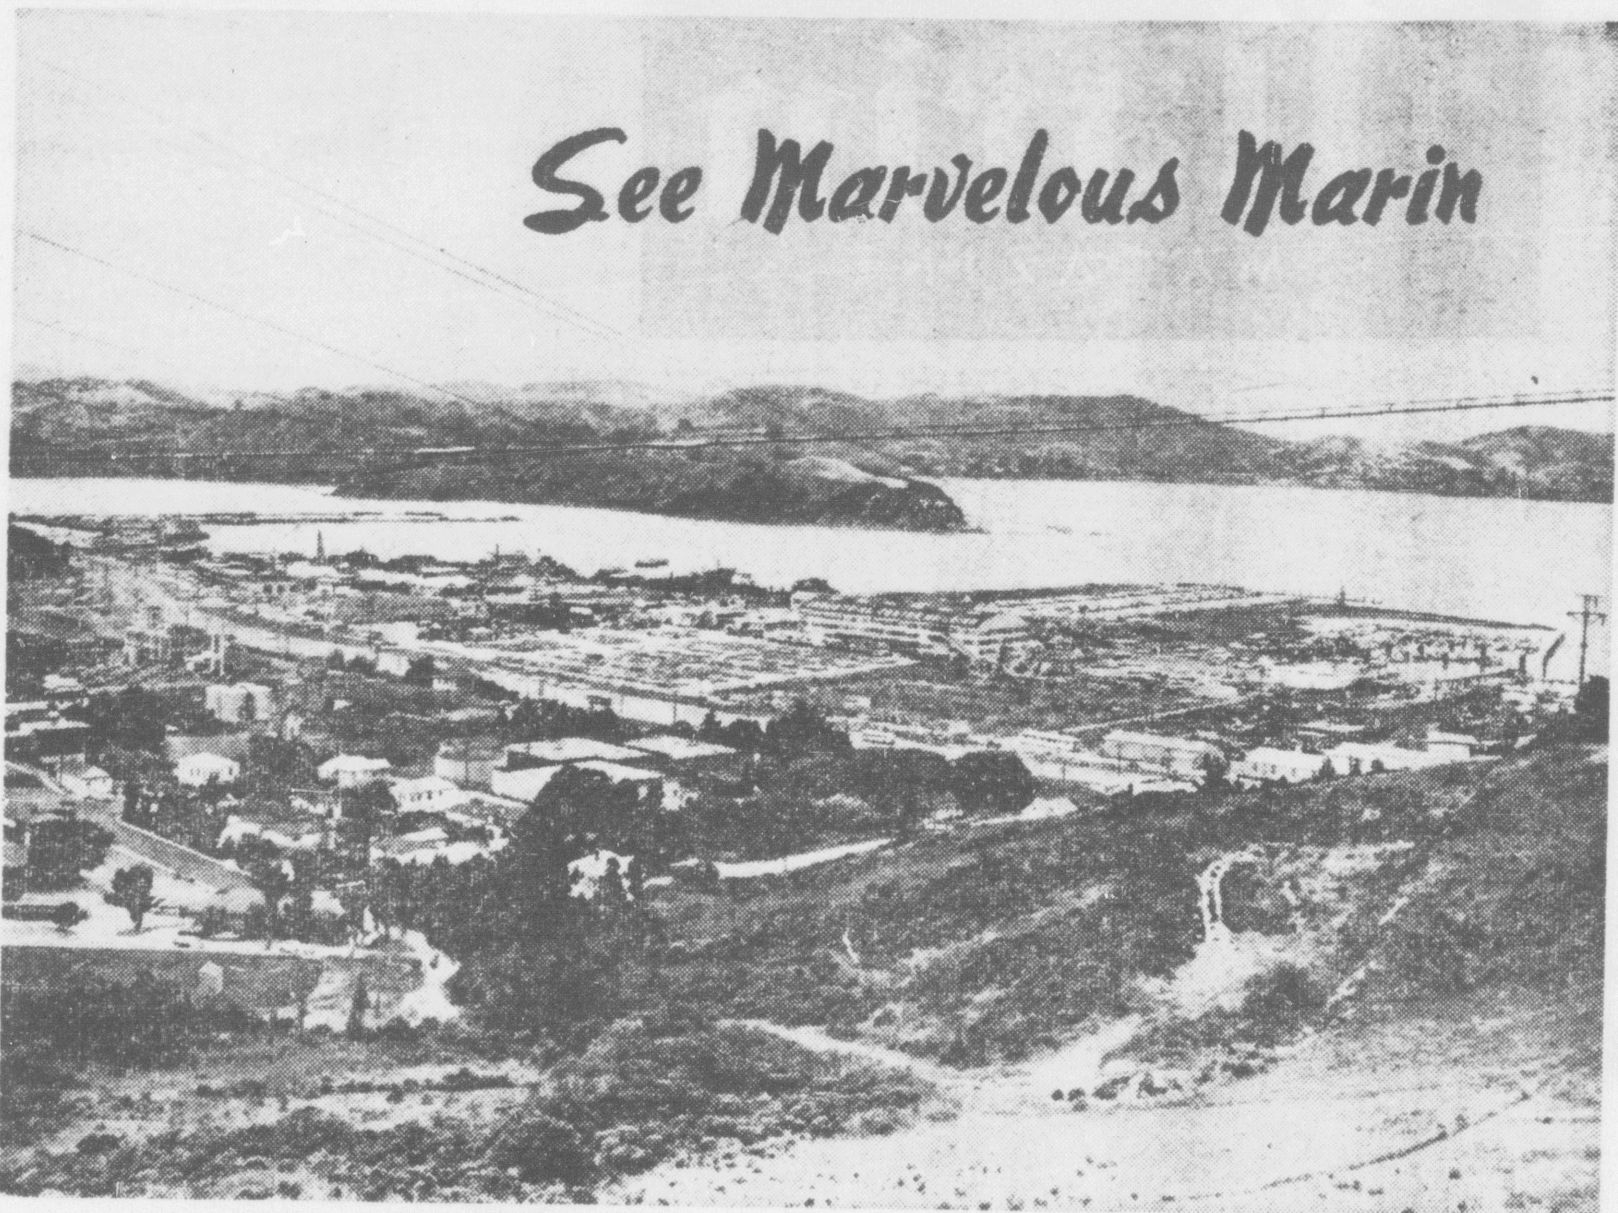

It was back in 1941 that World War II brought changes that converted what was largely a waterfront waste area of mudflats and marshland into one of the nation's major shipbuilding centers.

W. A. BECHTEL CO. had been requested by the U.S. Maritime Commission to build and operate a new shipyard to turn out critically-needed cargo vessels. Bechtel officials looked to uncongested Marin County as the most logical site for such a plant and ultimately selected a location on the shores of Richardson Bay that had been the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad terminal just north of Sausalito.

Pine Hill was cut away, the marshland filled, a channel dredged, the railroad tracks re-located. Piledriving operations followed and the shipways were built with the necessary underground piping systems for water, air, acetylene and oxygen plus sanitary and storm sewers.

Ultimately a total of 23 buildings were erected including hospital and cafeteria. There 93 ships were built for Uncle Sam's war effort.

Marinship was famed as one of the first of the ship-

IF MARINSHIP is no longer quite the bustling place it was during World War II when shipyards there produced vital ships for Uncle Sam, it is nevertheless an active and important industrial complex, as this photo shows. Inter-persed among skeletons of its wartime glory are many small industrial and commercial firms which have chosen to locate in the waterfront section of northern Sausalito. (Independent-Journal photo) yards to train and employ women on a large scale. Car pools were another field in which the ingenious Marin shipbuilders pioneered. And included among the men and women who riveted and welded at Marinship were many famous personalities who seized upon the opportunity to contribute their bit to the winning of the war.

WHEN THE JOB was done, the yards became expendable. Ownership of the facilities passed into the hands of the Army Corps of Engineers.

Now, though Marinship is no longer the bustling beehive that it was during World War II, it remains a significant factor in Marin's industrial economy. Light manufacturing plants, commercial businesses and boat works have located within the area. It is estimated that there are 260 such small firms on Marinship property. At least some of the colorful flavor of the war years has been maintained despite signs of decay and neglect. And there is ample space still available for future commercial and industrial growth and expansion.

And Marinship does have one prime attraction for tourists and Marinites alike. In 1955 Army engineers altered the huge warehouse building they had acquired in requisitioning the shipbuilding facilities to provide suitable shelter for a model of San Francisco Bay complete even to tide flows and silt deposits.

Work on the model itself began in 1956. Built on a scale of one foot to 1,000 feet horizontally and one foot to 100 feet vertically, of precast, lightweight and reinforced concrete slabs (a 12 foot square weighs five tons), the model covers 29,000 square feet in paving with overall dimensions of 340 feet by 340 feet. The model of the Golden Gate Bridge is nine feet in length, the Golden Gate itself four feet deep.

Depicted is an area extending from Alviso to Napa and from the Pacific Ocean to the vicinity of Antioch.

THE RISE and fall of the tide and accompanying tidal currents are created by generating the tide in the model ocean. Salt water is pumped from a storage pump into the ocean head bay. Ebb and flood are regulated by an automatic tide-control operating a motor-driven valve in a separate outflow pipe connecting the head bay and sump.

The model is essentially a scientific tool by which the engineers analyze hydraulics problems that cannot be resolved from textbooks, experience or mathematics alone.

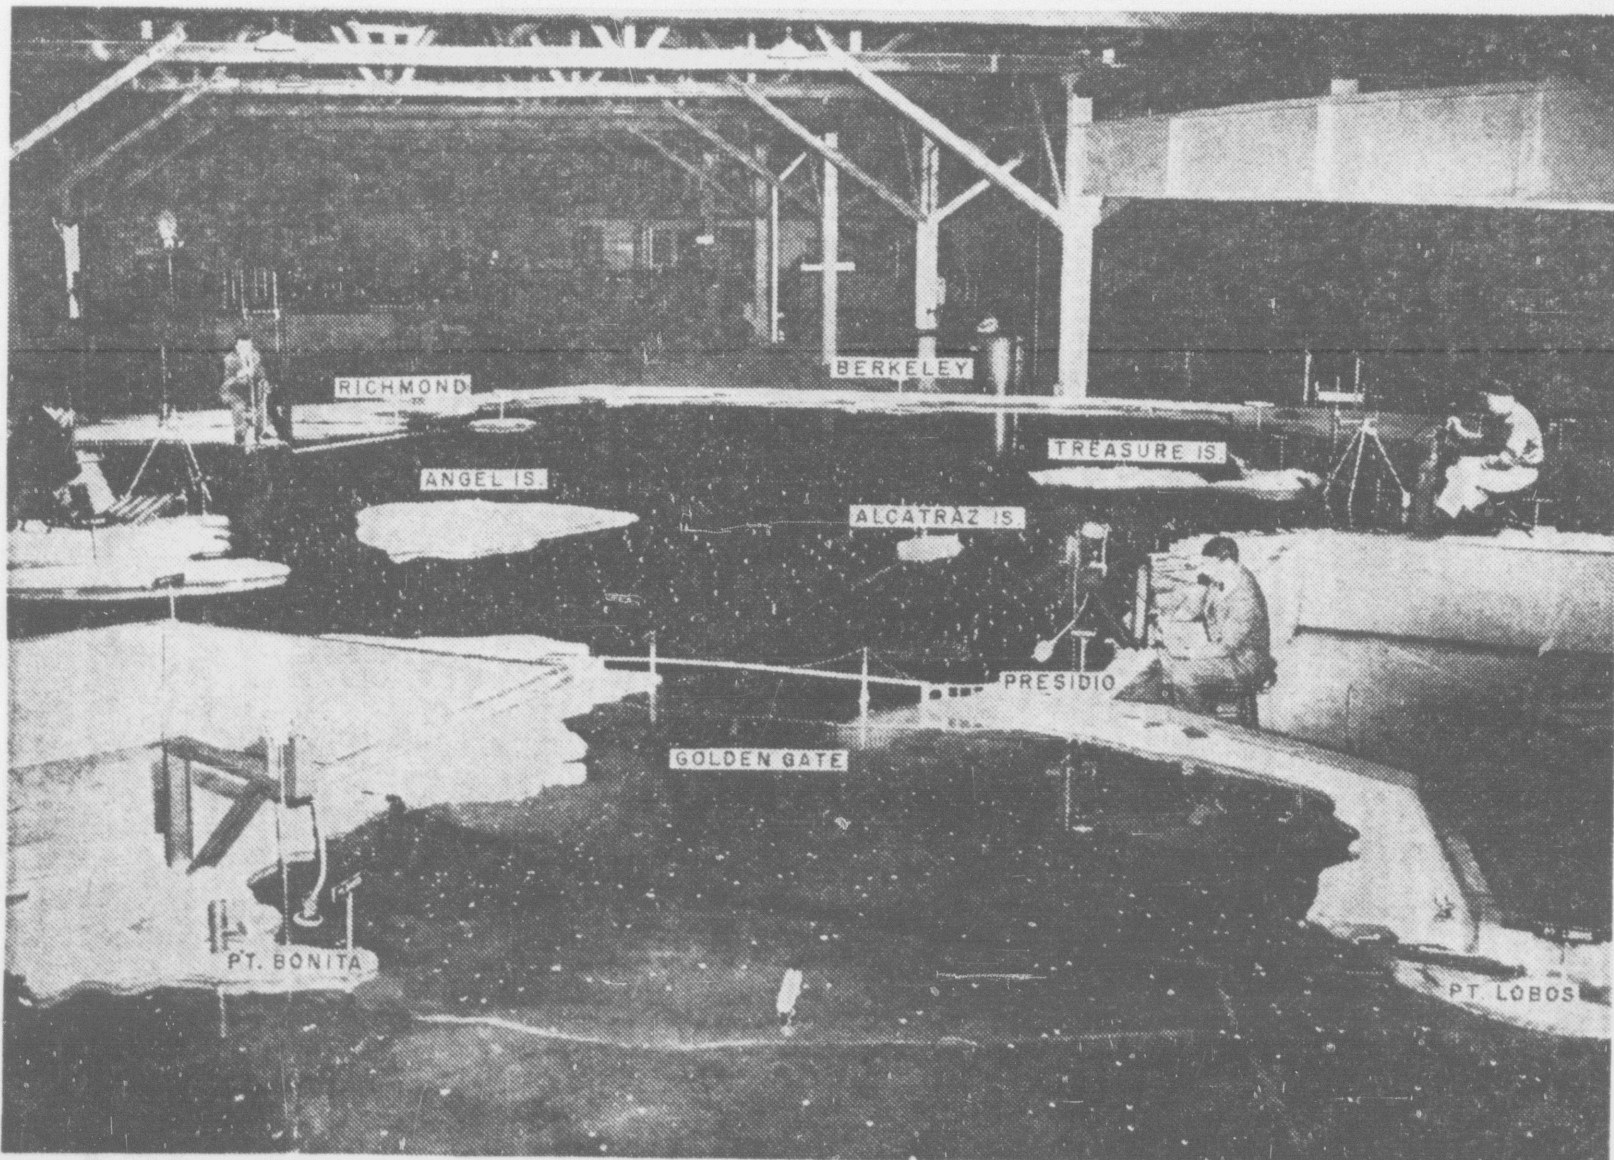

It has also proven to be a fascinating point of interest for the thousands of laymen who have visited the huge warehouse to watch the model in action.

THE MODEL is open to the public Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. However, the tidal, siltage and other special features are in action only every other day. A telephone call to the Corps of Engineers at 332-3870 is advised if you want to make sure of timing your visit so that you will see the model functioning fully.

Panels of photographs and a moving slide display show some of the working features of the model plus other activities of the Army engineers.

There is no visitor's fee, and explanatory literature is available.

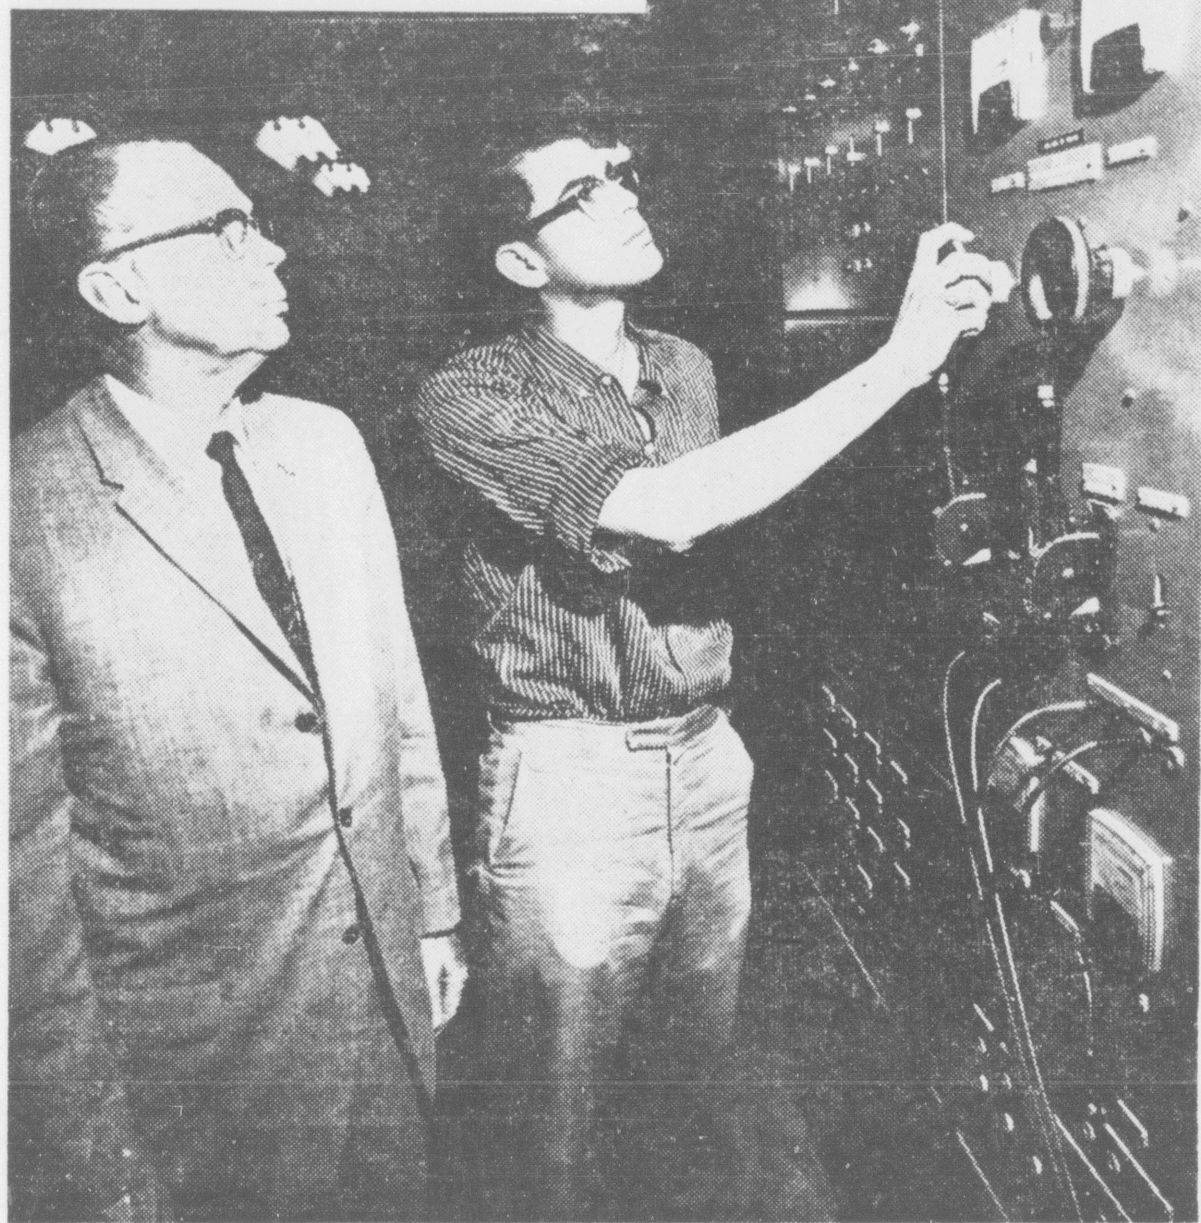

(Editor's Note: This is another in your Marin Magazine's "See Marvelous Marin" series on places of historical, recreational, scenic and educational interest in Marin, prepared in cooperation with radio station KTIM.)

THE CHIEF ATTRACTION for visitors to Marinship today is this huge model of San Francisco Bay, housed in what was a huge warehouse during the shipbuilding years. The model is essentially a working tool for Army engineers.

It is, however, also a point of keen interest to lay people and is open to the public. (Photo courtesy of Corps of Engineers)

Carlton Cherry—He's Teacher, Engineer, Avid Outdoorsman

College Of Marin Instructor Is Also Hard Worker On Behalf Of Civic Causes

By BARBARA HOSMER

Though Carlton E. Cherry of Larkspur has been a College of Marin instructor for over 31 years and a member of countless civic boards and committees, he is not a man content to plant his feet under a meeting table and humpf.

Five days a week may find him as chairman of the college's engineering, science, mathematics and industrial arts division in his tree-shaded office or moving among the students bent over drawing boards in his engineering classes on the Kentfield campus.

But on the sixth, he's a small figure climbing a distant trail, dwarfed by abysmal canyons and granite peaks of the high country. With him is his wife, Ethel, and together they have backpacked and burro-packed some thousand miles of Sierra trails ranging from Mt. Lassen on the north to Mt. Whitney on the south.

"I WORK WITH people all day, every week," says 54-year-old Cherry, who has the appearance of a prosperous businessman rather than a rugged outdoorsman, and who obviously enjoys his work, especially with young people. "But when vacation-time comes, I like to get away—just to be with my family."

And through the years he and his wife have aimed the family vehicle toward the mountains on weekends, school vacations and summers to hike the trails of California, Crater Lake and Mt. Hood in Oregon, Olympic Park and Mt. Rainier in Washington, the Tetons and the Bridger Wilderness area in Wyoming and Glacier National Park in Montana.

Cherry believes his affinity for the outdoor life began when he was a year and a half old and rode horseback in front of his mother's saddle along dusty trails to an Arizona mining camp at Copper Creek, where his father was the engineer in charge of installing the first electrical equipment.

His father, Floyd H. Cherry, had come with his wife from Ohio to become an engineer with the Southern California Edison Co. in Los Angeles, where Carlton Eugene was born Oct. 21, 1907. In 1909 he took charge of installing the first electrical equipment for the mines at Copper Creek before Arizona became a state.

When Carlton was 5, he returned to Los Angeles with his parents and there his brother, Laurence H. Cherry, who is now an engineer for Lockheed in Sunnyvale, was born.

"Then in the next eight years I went to nine different schools in various construction camps in Arizona, Wyoming and other places," he relates.

IT WAS A TIME when electrical equipment was first installed at U.S. Reclamation Service plants throughout the country, and Cherry's father was active in early development of electrical power on the Pacific Coast, taking his wife and small sons to mines and construction camps in remote areas.

In later years when Cherry returned to the Copper Creek mine area in Arizona he found the mine abandoned and not much changed. But when he and his wife visited the area near Roosevelt Dam where he had lived, Cherry became confused.

"I remembered the distances as we traveled them with a team and wagon and it took days . . . in a car it took only hours."

At the close of World War I Floyd Cherry took his family to Berkeley and was professor of engineering at the University of California for many years during which he wrote the textbook, "Descriptive Geometry," which his son still uses in his Marin classes. In the years that both father and son were teaching engineering they often compared class materials and would exchange examination papers, proving the classes at the College of Marin and the university to be parallel.

Floyd Cherry died in Berkeley on Aug. 6, 1952, and his widow now lives in San Anselmo.

Young Carlton was graduated from Berkeley High School and received the Bachelor of Science degree in engineering from the University of California in 1930 and his master's degree a year later.

At Cal he met his future wife, a Berkeley girl, and they were married June 6 in the depression year 1931, immediately after Carlton had finished his graduate study. A geography major with a botany minor, Ethel Tibbetts Cherry obviously shared her husband's interest in the outdoors, and today she is as enthusiastic as he toward their camping and hiking expeditions, particularly enjoying the mountain plants and flowers.

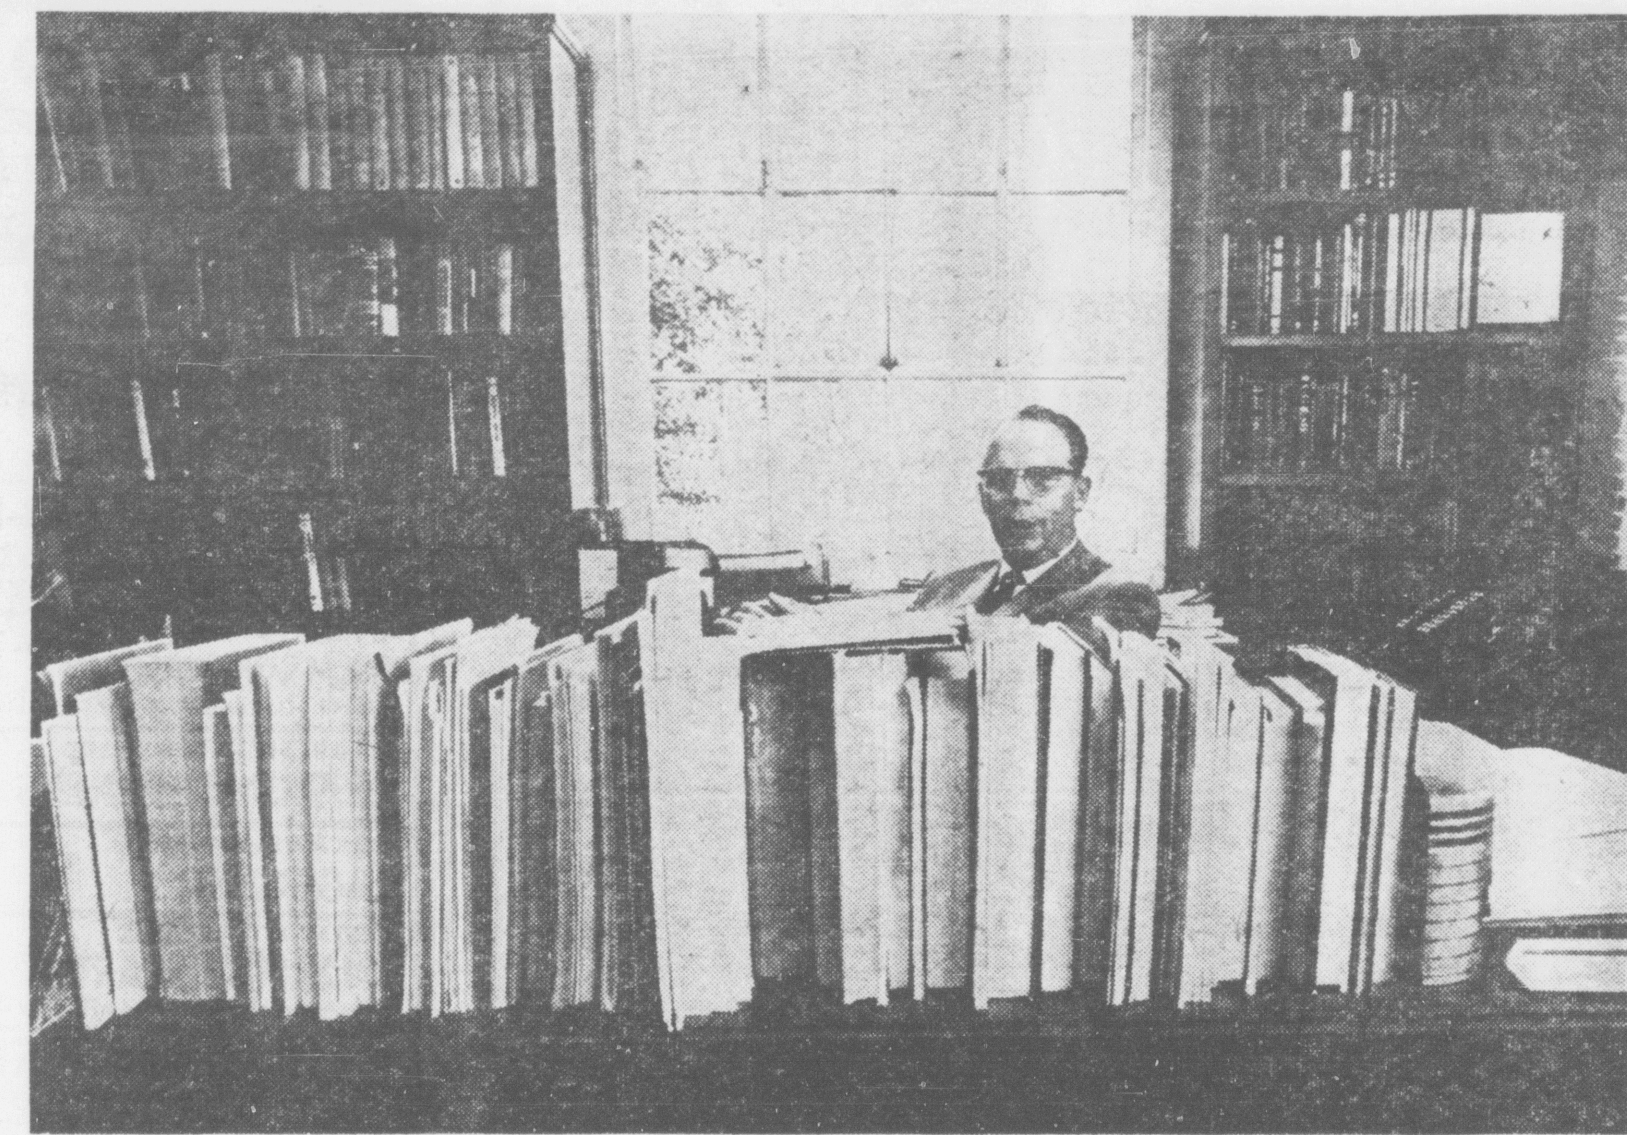

A DAUGHTER was born to them, and for many years Eunice accompanied her parents on the mountain treks. She is now married and lives near Sacramento, where she works in the technical library at Aerojet General Corp. and her husband is a social worker with the Children's Home Society of California.

"When Eunice was little we'd put her on a burro and lead it while we hiked on foot with pack animals," relates Cherry, an accomplished photographer who enjoys pointing out the picture among scenic photos hung on the walls of his Kentfield campus office showing the 10-year-old child aboard a burro while her mother holds the lead rope beside pack burros with a huge slab of granite as a backdrop.

"There we were on the pass between Kings Canyon and Sequoia during a 30-day trip to Mt. Whitney," he explains.

The Cherrys have climbed Whitney twice on foot and they've been up Half Dome in Yosemite as well.

"Yosemite's our favorite

THE BOOKS AND PAPERWORK necessary for carrying out his responsibilities as head of the engineering, science, mathematics and industrial arts division at College of Marin occupy much of the desk space as well as the time of Carlton E. Cherry, seen here in his pleasant office on the Kentfield campus. But he also spends many hours of each week in the classroom or laboratory working with his students. And until the college's new counseling system was established, he was also a regular student counselor for the school. (Independent-Journal photo) place and we prefer to ski and hike the back country there most of all," Cherry says. "We even camp in Yosemite on New Year's, with our carry-all truck."

Ethel and Carlton Cherry took up skiing only six years ago when they chaperoned a student group from the College of Marin on a trip between semesters, and now each year they take a group skiing at Squaw Valley, Sugar Bowl and Soda Springs, in addition to their own trips.

With summer coming, Cherry plans to head the carry-all truck toward Colorado. "And on the return, I particularly want to see the Glen Canyon and Navajo dams which are under construction," says the engineer. The green 1960 model truck, with its custom designed and built-in bunks and compartments, ice chest, stove and tool racks, reflects the engineering inventiveness of its owner.

THOUGH HE IS a licensed engineer with the state of California, Cherry has preferred to serve in the classroom and get his practical engineering experience through summer work and volunteer civic projects.

"I'll never get rich, but I enjoy what I'm doing and have not been tied down," he explains.

Cherry really didn't plan it that way when he received his graduate degree from U.C. in the depression year 1931. With work scarce he counted himself lucky to obtain a teaching job on the Kentfield campus of the then young college, thinking perhaps he'd go into business as an engineer later.

"But I liked the teaching of engineering so much that I've never wanted to leave," says the man who values so highly his summer and holiday vacations which allow travel.

But much of the time outside the classroom he has given to young people and to his community. He has grown up with the college, now beginning to find among his math and engineering students sons of those he taught in the early years. And when the school gridiron needed bleachers in 1939 Carlton Cherry and football coach Scoop Carlson spent the summer sinking the uprights and driving the nails.

Over the years when the students have needed faculty leaders for a snow jaunt or weekend expedition, Mr. and Mrs. Cherry were likely to make the trip.

Much of his adult life Cherry has spent working for and with young people. A teacher and a counselor at the college for 31 years, he has devoted 28 years of service to the Marin Council of Boy Scouts of America "because I was a Scout myself and because I have no sons." He began as a scoutmaster of a Larkspur troop before World War II and has been a member of the board of directors for many years. He also served for 14 years as a board member of the Marin County Camp Fire Girls "because I have a daughter."

THE MONEY GOES
'ROUND AND 'ROUND

What with orbital flights, Laos, wife swapping clubs and the see-saw fate of the San Francisco Giants monopolizing our attention and the coffee Klatsch confabs, it is hardly likely any thought is given to the impact of a progressive business in the community.

It is hoped we will be forgiven for a tendency to blow our own horn a bit at Ames Ford, but if you good people are inclined to chastise us for this seemingly boorish display of chest-thumping, please try to recall the name of any man who attained any measure of success or fame in any endeavor with a quiet, unassuming manner. No, the trumpets do blare either for him or by him and the echoes linger loud and long.

The normal reaction, if indeed there is a reaction to a thought about a prosperous enterprise is confined to speculation about the tremendous profits enjoyed by the company and the attendant wealth of its principals. It would be safe to wager that no thought whatever is given to the contributions made by that company to the economy of the entire community.

This, then, will be the lyrics of the trumpet sonata we will be playing shortly, and, it is hoped, our tune will be catchy enough to reach even the tone-deaf segment of our marvelous county of Marin.

It is difficult to imagine that many real thinking Marinites who profess a genuine affection for their county (and who among us would harbor any other thought about Marin?) would deliberately purchase their clothing, furniture or automobiles in San Francisco or Oakland if they were aware of just two irrefutable truths. Truth No. 1: Marin County merchants offer equal or better selections of clothing, furniture and models of automobiles at equal or better prices than their trans-bay competitors. Truth No. 2: Every business in Marin County makes a substantial contribution to the total economy of the entire county by virtue of its local payroll, purchases from local vendors, sales taxes, personal and real property taxes, and license fees.

This subject is worthy of further discussion, we hope you will agree. Naturally it is my intention to spell out more clearly the specific contribution of Ames Ford to the economy of Marin, as well as some good and valid reasons why these contributions can be made and still offer substantial savings to our customers.

WIFE ETHEL WAS LEADING daughter Eunice's burro and pack train along a rocky ridge during one of the family's summer outings high in the Sierra when photography enthusiast Carlton Cherry snapped this picture. Now, says

Cherry, with their daughter grown, married and living near Sacramento, he and his wife prefer to "back pack" on such climbs and dispense with the pack animals.

only man, surrounded by 120 females.

"While my wife was assistant director I just kept busy installing electrical equipment and building things for the camp," he said, and he found time to swim and take photographs as well.

Cherry and his wife are active in the Methodist Church of San Rafael, both singing in the choir, and serving on the official board. Cherry was chairman of the original building committee, and is now serving on the committee for a new educational unit. His wife, with the help of a gardener, did the layout and planting of the grounds for the relatively new church building.

Today when Cherry steps outside the house on Marina Vista in Larkspur that he built 25 years ago, he looks down over the Corte Madera shopping center, the Paradise Drive development with its network of streets and structures and remembers when it was all simply marshland.

WHAT BOTHERS him most about the development in Marin is that "we've had a lot of planning that we haven't been able to carry out."

Cherry believes that, if the streets and highway master plan he worked on in 1944 had been carried out, much of the current traffic snarl could have been avoided. "It's been a very slow process putting master plans into effect here."

Cherry predicts that the Corte Madera Creek flood control plan that he has worked on since 1943 may finally get action soon.

He has served on post-war planning committees for Marin County, is secretary for the Marin County Flood Control Advisory Commission, and he has written two reports for the supervisors preliminary to Corps of Engineers hearings on flood conditions of the Corte Madera Creek and one on the San Rafael Creek.

He has also worked as a technician on the Marin County Planning Commission, using his photography skill to make photo records of county areas.

With a group of engineering students Cherry spent the summer of 1944 at Hamilton Air Force Base studying stress on airport runways by heavy planes for the University of California and the U.S. Corps of Engineers. Their findings were used for the remainder of the war and since for construction of airport runways.

Also in 1944 Cherry and a group of his students did the first surveying of Shell Beach prior to its becoming a park.

CURRENTLY HE is active in the Marin Conservation League, hoping to help save a little wilderness from the wave of development sweeping the county.

Cherry not only enjoys hiking and camping in the wilderness but he has also made an award-winning hobby of recording it on film. Once active in the Ross Valley Camera Club and in statewide contests and absorbed in processing techniques in his darkroom, Cherry now prefers color slide work and enjoys showing pictures for various groups. An office drawer divulges albums of snaps recording informal scenes on the Kentfield campus over the 31 years and groups of the students Cherry has taught there.

"My brother in Sunnyvale runs into quite a few of my students," he says proudly, and many drop by or write him from time to time. A few are now on the College of Marin faculty.

Cherry is kept busy serving the college and is currently chairman of the Tripartite Engineering Liaison Committee for which he represented the junior colleges of California at its formation in 1948, and he has represented the junior colleges of the state on the Planning Committee for Engineering Coordination in the Publicly Supported Educational Institutions of California set up by the state Board of Education and Regents of the University of California as a result of the study on higher education in California. He's also a charter member of the Pacific Southwest section of the American Society of Engineering Education, and has served as chairman of this section.

The titles, the activities, degrees, the service to his community form a formidable list, but the man is most enthusiastic about the trips he and his wife make to visit their daughter and son-in-law on the weekends to help them landscape the yard of their new home in Citrus Heights, and next year the tour they hope to make up the Alaska Highway in their carry-all truck—camping, of course.

Susan Likes Life Of Spanish

By ELLEN BRY

Susan Pemberton left Mill Valley a year ago to live the life of a young Spanish woman in Madrid.

Today she still has the un-

Spanish blue eyes and face, but has acquired a beehive hair-do and speaks Spanish.

"I understand nearly everything now—get the idea," she says. The understanding has come from living as part of a Spanish family, taking courses at the University of Madrid, dating Spanish boys—living as a Spaniard.

WHEN SHE FIRST came to Spain in September, 1961, Susan spoke only English and the French she had learned at Tamalpais High School where she was graduated last June. With her during her senior year was Amparo Huici from Madrid, who lived with the Pemberton family under the American Field Service exchange program and attended classes at Tam.

Susan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Pemberton, 841 Summit Avenue, Mill Valley.

After Amparo's stay with

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania

SEATTLE, Wash.—THE SOUND OF THE WORLD WE LIVE IN. It's amazing how much sound actually surrounds us as we go about our daily activities. Most of these sounds go seemingly unnoticed, but in a subconscious sort-of-way, these sounds are continually motivating us.

When I arrived at the San Francisco International Airport for my trip here to Seattle, I entered into an atmosphere of pleasant background music interspersed with an interplay of the screech of jets and the noise made by the bustle of travelers. Occasionally, the paging system would announce a flight.

Soon after I was comfortably seated in a DC 8 Jet Airliner, the background music in the plane stopped and a soothing feminine voice floated from the PA system, "Directly above you is an oxygen mask. Although you probably will not be required to use one, I will demonstrate its use—we hope you have a pleasant trip to Seattle."

As I passed through the lobby of the Olympic Hotel in Seattle to attend the Institute of Radio Engineers' Conference, a television set was blasting away and people were crowding around it to hear and see the recovery of Astronaut Carpenter.

When my wife and I boarded the monorail, another pleasant feminine voice greeted us, this time over the train's PA system. "To those of you who have just joined us, welcome aboard the Alweg monorail. You will arrive at Century 21 in approximately 96 seconds on the 1.2 mile trip to the Fairgrounds. Perhaps you would be interested in knowing that each Alweg monorail train is powered by eight 100 horsepower electric motors. This power, plus the train's pneumatic rubber tires, is responsible for the monorail's quiet ride at speeds up to 60 miles per hour."

As we entered the gates of Century 21 and approached the extremely impressive Space Needle, towering over 600 feet high, the blare of a marching band quickly lifted us into the festive spirit of the fair. While we toured the exhibits, the speaker projectors mounted about half way up on the Space Needle burst forth with carillon music.

Listening to the Sounds We Live With in a conscientious manner, can provide you with a very wonderful experience. Try it.

Marin Teen-Ager In Madrid

the Pembertons, his parents personally asked Susan to live with them for a school year in Madrid.

Susan now knows enough Spanish to understand the liquid flow of language which comes from the vivacious Huici parents and their children, Amparo, Carmen and Lola. For as Amparo says, in Spanish, "I spoke English for a year in the United States. Now we speak Spanish."

Susan attends classes in Spanish history, art, literature, philosophy and grammar, 20 hours weekly at the university, with all lectures spoken in Spanish. She plans to attend the University of California at Berkeley next fall to become an elementary school teacher.

The change back to the American society will not be too great, Susan believes.

"I am surprised how little difference there is between people. I've met so many different people here — Egyptians, Scandinavians, French — in the classes at the university."

She has not been homesick — "well, maybe one day in the whole year."

Her day in Madrid begins with a very light breakfast at the Huici home, then a crowded tram ride to the outskirts of Madrid where the modern, square lined, red brick university has been newly built, surrounded by green grass and small, formal gardens.

HER CLOTHES are a sweater and skirt, stockings and high heels, to fit in with Spanish formality which means that all teen-age and adult women wear stockings, heels, suits or dressy sweaters and skirt and that men, from teen-agers up, wear suits, white shirts and ties for street wear.

The babble of student voices is highest around the bar on the main floor of one of the university halls. A bar where the student, dressed as an adult, can buy pop, gin, a sandwich, cognac, sweet roll, wine.

The lecture room has the sound of student voices in many languages. The professor speaks Spanish and the students sit at desk-chairs which have carved on them words and sentences in a dozen languages.

With classes over for the morning, Susan takes the tram home where the maid will serve the entire family the main meal of the day at about 2:30 p.m. and Susan will be kidded by Senior Felix Huici for her love of cheese ("Susie-mouse") and her steady consumption of American pop.

A siesta follows, for the day is not even half done. Susan returns to class late in the afternoon, then goes home again. She may have a date with a Spanish boy, which means he will call for her about 7 p.m. for a few hours meandering walk along the broad tree-shaded sidewalks, dancing at a club or going to a movie. She is back home by about 10 o'clock. In the eighth floor apartment, she and the Huici family will again sit down to a hot meal at about 10:30 p.m.

Susan believes she could live happily in this Spanish society. She now has a hard time remembering what she first noticed as "most different" in the country.

She was shocked at the poverty of many in a country which still has virtually no middle class. She noted the juxtaposition of the new and the old, the slow-moving farm carts pulled by burros on the roads which also carry the whizzing, honking Spanish cars.

SHE HAS BECOME used to the different dining hours and likes the fried Spanish food though she worries about gaining weight. She is frightened of riding on a motorcycle or motorscooter, the most common form of transportation.

She now is used to the more formal Spanish way, which includes hand kissing or shaking of hands at every meeting or leave taking, among teen-agers or adults, men and women.

She is accustomed now to the slow-moving Spanish life.

"When I first came here, after about 15 minutes of sitting, I had to get up and do something. Now I just—" and she waves her hand, in a leisurely way.

"When I first came I was kind of afraid—just out of high school. It's been a good experience. My parents won't know me when I get home."

IT'S SERENADE TIME in Madrid before the afternoon siesta. And Amparo Huici, left, entertains her American guest, Susan Pemberton of Mill Valley, with some guitar music. Susan is living with Amparo and her family while taking courses at the University of Madrid. (Photos by Michael Bry)

"Why Do My Furs Shed and Show Bare Areas?"

My brother and I were visiting with our Furrier friend (Harold Asher of San Francisco) and we brought up the topic of "furs and fur care" in our conversations.

"Do you know" we were told "that my surveys over the years have shown that one woman in ten takes care of her furs . . . that is, to give them the same care and consideration that is given her coiffure . . . her gowns . . . and her apparel in general.

"This lack of care is the greatest instrument to the depreciation of value . . . let alone the loss to her fine fur piece of its lustre . . . it's form of fashion and the artisanship that the "FURRIER" created with painstaking skill . . . and no small effort."

"For instance . . . the beautiful Mink Stole that is the prized possession in Milady's wardrobe has considerable "life" value . . . the stole contains many pelts . . . outside and inside edges . . . two distinct areas of fur, "top guard hair" and "underfur" . . . when soil . . . stains . . . forging matter . . . dampness . . . are allowed to accumulate, the tendency towards "rubbed areas" . . . the "mussed up" look are greatly increased by this condition and soon "bare" areas occur . . . a choice condition for "moth larvae."

"The guard hair and under fur should be "free flowing" so that any movement of air or wind ever so slight would cause the fur to move and give."

"Our methods of 'Furrier Technique' combined with the modern chemistry of cleaning glazing and polishing are most thorough and "give longer life to your furs."

"Give your valuable furs thought . . . give them the able care by a "technician" they deserve and you will be rewarded with their "newer look" and the protection of your "fur investment."

Should you have any "fur questions" . . . just ask us. . . We will take pleasure in answering. — By Robt. and Ronald Casassa, Marin Cleaners, Inc.

RAILROAD BUILDER Robert R. Rankin of Novato stands in the center of the garage-filling "Cascade and Willamette" HO scale model railroad at his home at 65 Ormond Court. Rankin's eight engines and 63 cars were assembled in various parts of the world from Iceland to Hawaii before his retirement in 1960 as an Air Force lieutenant colonel. The still unfinished layout has about 175 feet of track winding through it. (Independent-Journal photo)

Novato's Railroading Colonel

By DICK STEINHEIMER

The long-awaited realization of one of the dreams of a retired Air Force lieutenant colonel is taking shape these days in Novato.

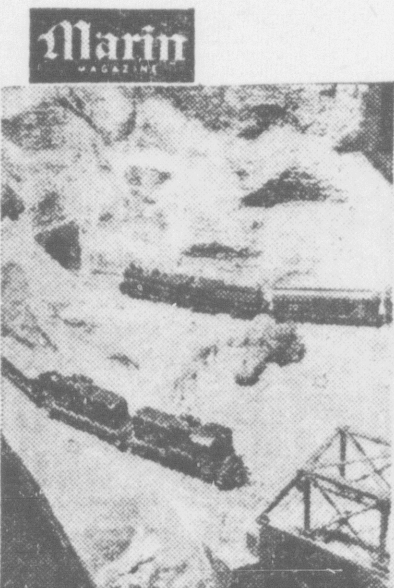

The colonel is Robert R. Rankin of 65 Ormond Court who was retired in 1960 after a final tour of duty in Iceland.

For several years before the Iceland duty, Rankin had in his mind the creation of a large HO gauge model railroad.

Through the years of duty he used off hours to construct model gondola cars, boxcars and other rolling stock for the proposed layout.

COVER PHOTO

ACTION scene on the Cascade and Willamette finds Robert Rankin's homemade two unit diesel heading a freight onto a bridge while a commercial made 4-6-0 moves stock train the other direction. Rankin at present works in a Terra Linda hardware store but his model making has led him into occasional jobs in the commercial model making field. (Photo by Dick Steinheimer, Independent-Journal staff photographer)

Finally, after retirement, he and his wife, Billie Jean, moved to Novato where the big two-car garage is slowly being filled in by construction of the long-planned layout.

IN COMMON with many other miniature HO layouts, he uses a 16-18 volt DC power supply.

The reostats, used to vary the flow of current to the tracks, are leftovers from an old B-17 bomber lighting system. The main surface area of the layout is roughed in, with more plastering to be done to achieve the finished natural ground look desired by model fans.

The model line utilizes eight engines and 63 cars on the approximately 175 feet of track. Construction is now going on for a lumber camp and a rock plant, as well as several bridges and trestles, all of which are painstakingly constructed from tiny sticks and sheets of cardboard.

THE GRAND OPENING with skilled riders on fine horses and much pomp and ceremony never fails to send a thrill down the spines of rabid rodeo fans. The pageantry serves as a fitting opening for the colorful action that will follow. And it is very much a part of rodeo tradition.

NO SPECTATORS are more engrossed in watching the cowboys in action than their fellow competitors. Here from the chute area some of the rodeo stars follow a calf roping.

THE BRONC CAN BE a stick of dynamite with the fuse burning, once he comes out of the chute with an unwelcome rider on board. Getting a rough trip here is Farrell Shotwell in the bareback riding event. Note the rodeo clown at left of photo.

Turn a photographer loose at a rodeo and he has a ball.

The action shots come fast and furious as he follows the competition of the cowpokes with his camera.

And there's color in the crowd as well as among the cowpokes who compete for cash and glory.

Take, for instance, the photographs on these pages, taken by Independent-Journal staff photographer Bob Hax at past rodeos sponsored by the San Rafael Kiwanis Club.

Tomorrow the Kiwanis Club will stage its fifth annual rodeo, again at the Circle V Ranch arena at Fairfax.

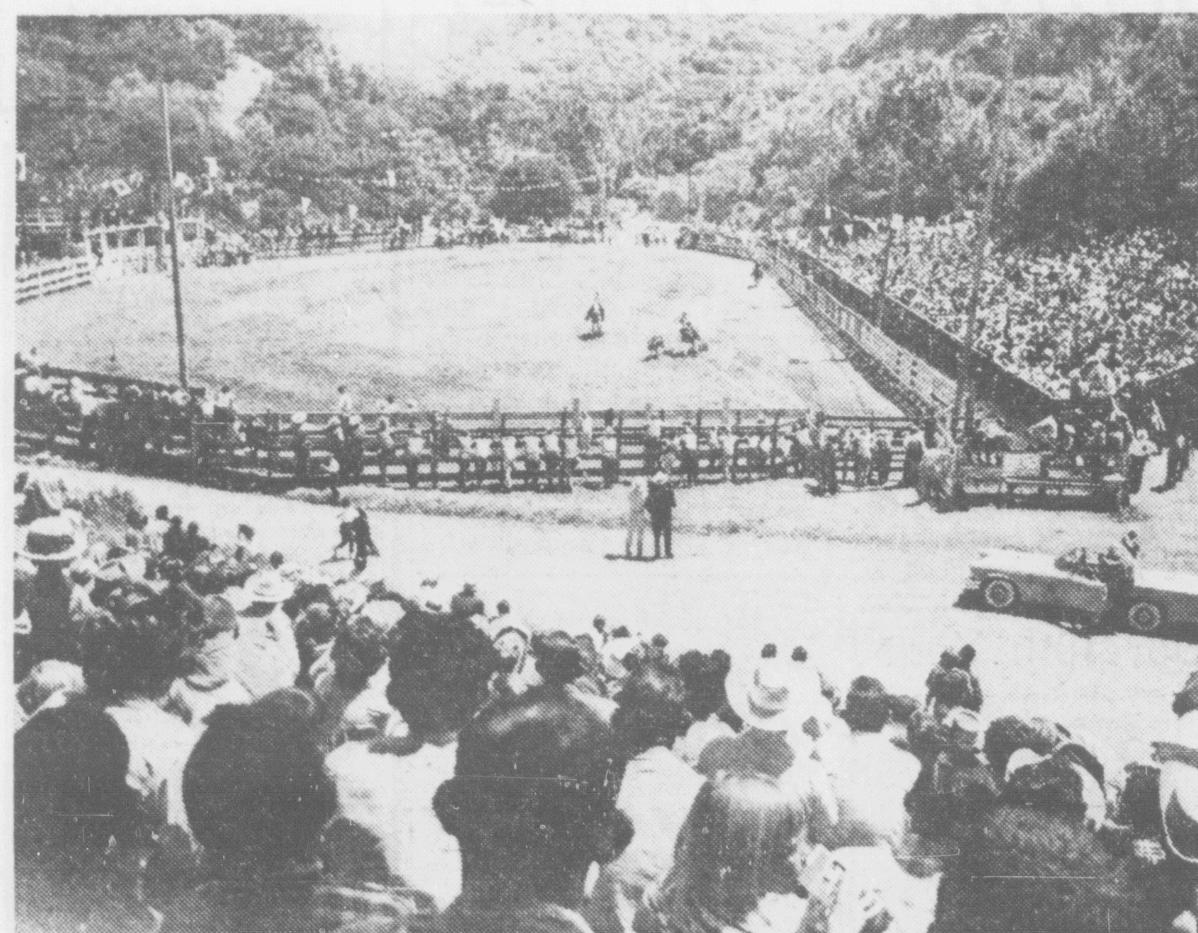

Proceeds from the big show go toward the club's many youth projects including aid for underprivileged children, sponsorship of Boy Scout units, scholarship programs, help for handicapped youngsters. Key Club sponsorship, etc.

The Kiwanians promise that tomorrow's action will be just as exciting, just as colorful as that captured by Hax in these photographs.

YOUNGSTERS ALWAYS get a special kick out of the fast and furious action of a rodeo. Here some admiring young "rail birds" are absorbed in watching the cowboys perform at a Kiwanis rodeo.

THIS IS WHAT the Circle V Ranch arena looks like with a rodeo under way and fans packing the stands. The action being watched is the popular calf roping event.

BULLDOGGING is always a popular event at the rodeo. In action here in a San Rafael Kiwanis Club rodeo is Jim Sumner of Forest Knolls.

THE CALF ROPING event on the rodeo program demands skill from both the cowboy and his mount as they work as a team. Tying his roped calf here is Dean McCuller.

THE RODEO COWBOY must, of necessity, be a rough and ready guy in order to absorb the jolts and falls. Here in the bareback bronc riding competition Chuck Doty of Novato is about to hit the dust hard. But to him it's all part of the game. All photographs were taken by Independent-

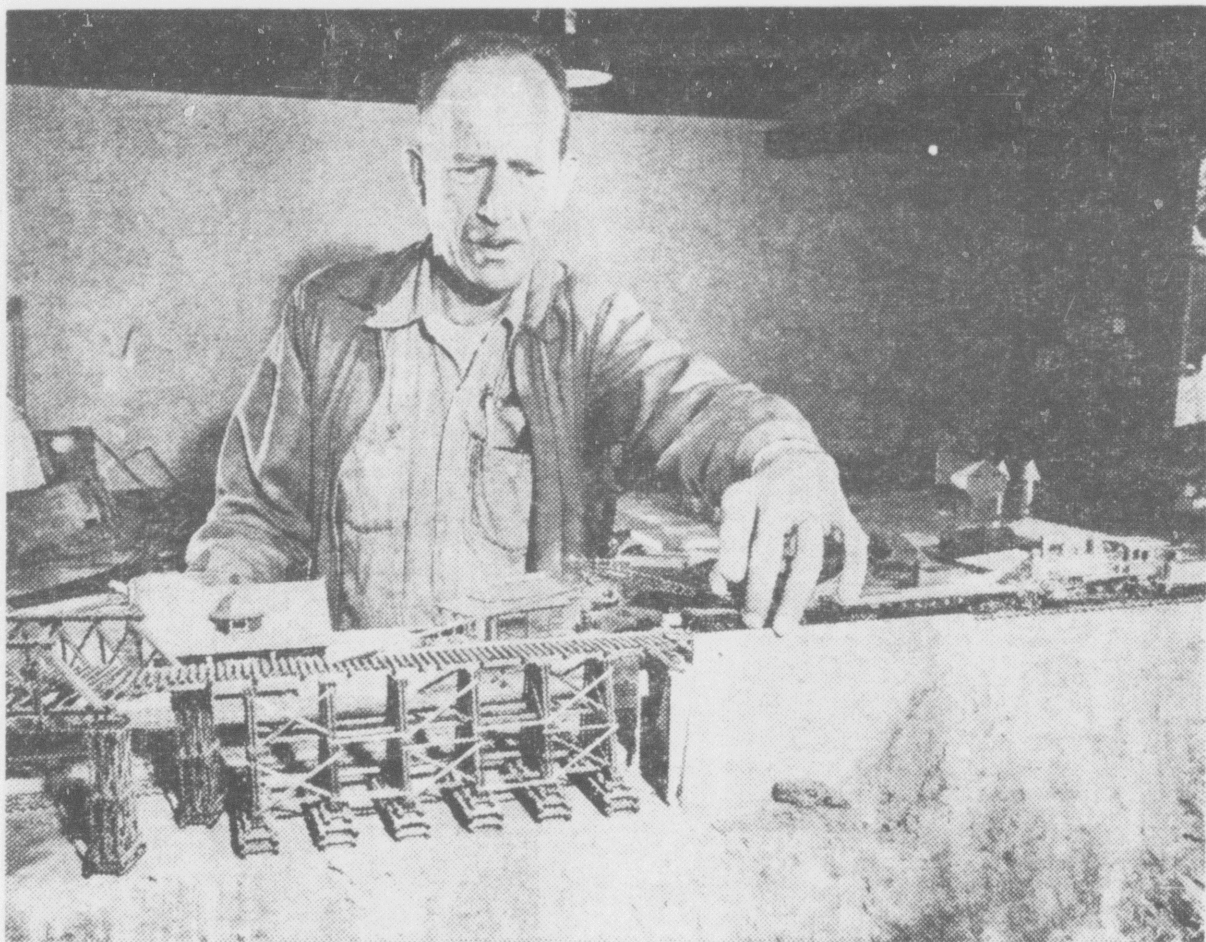

Journal staff photographer Bob Hax at past San Rafael Kiwanis Club rodeos at Fairfax's Circle V Ranch. The fifth annual Kiwanis rodeo will take place there tomorrow at 1 p.m.

The Cascade & Willamette Climbs Mountains In Novato

Rankin is now the chief clerk and paymaster for the Redwood Empire Division of the National Model Railroaders Assn. He is employed by a Terra Linda hardware store, but finds time to do commercial model building for various firms and individuals.

ROBERT RANKIN'S "giant" hand intrudes on the one to 85 scale layout in the area of tracklaying on a new trestle for the Cascade and Willamette. The system is modeled after a small mountain railroad, with a little logging branch line winding up to the summit of a hill. (Independent Journal photos)

AT THE 12-VOLT controls made from a surplus B-17 airplane lighting system, Rankin prepares the layout for departure of a home-made two unit diesel-powered train. On cold Novato nights Rankin's wife Billie Jean cooperates by drying the family clothes in the garage, helping to maintain a habitable temperature.

MOUNTAIN SCENERY looms in the distance as the diesel units move their small HO gauge cars. Among Rankin's friends in modelmaking are William Melson of Novato and Peter Bechtel of Sleepy Hollow. Rankin is chief clerk and paymaster for the Redwood Empire region of the National Model Railroaders Assn.

YOU AND YOUR INSURANCE

UNDER-INSURING MAY BE A COSTLY WAY TO SAVE

"If I have a fire in my home, will my insurance pay the full cost of repairs?" This is a question we've been asked frequently, and the answer must be that it is up to you.

While the full face amount of your dwelling policy is available to pay a total loss, insurance payments for partial losses are determined in one of two ways: (1) The actual cash value of the property damaged, which is the replacement cost minus depreciation for obsolescence and the wear and tear that goes with age; or (2) the amount of money that would be required to replace the damaged property.

Misunderstanding about insurance settlements occur most frequently when there is a partial loss. Under the first settlement procedure, if the roof of your house is damaged by fire, the loss is settled on the basis of actual cash value rather than replacement cost. The age of the roof would be a factor and depreciation would be a consideration in the loss adjustment.

However, the other method of loss settlement—replacement cost—ignores depreciation and would pay for the cost of a new roof. This loss settlement provision is included in all homeowners policies and can be purchased separately with other property insurance policies.

One limitation, however, is that the policyholder carry an amount of insurance on his property to at least 80 per cent of its replacement cost. If he does not, he loses the advantage of being able to collect the full replacement cost.

Replacement cost insurance is one of the most liberal forms of protection. To realize its advantages, you must be certain that you have the proper amount of insurance.

This column will be glad to answer any question you may have about property and casualty insurance. Send them to:

STEREO NOTES

Jazzmen Give Weill Pieces The Respect They Merit

By JOHN SUNIER
Editor, Bay FM & Cultural Guide

ANDRE PREVIN and J. J. Johnson play Kurt Weill's "Mack the Knife," "Bilbao Song" and other music from "The Threepenny Opera,"

"Happy End" and "Mahogany" — Columbia Stereo CS 8541.

Before his death in 1950, German composer Weill gave the Broadway musical stage some of its finest moments and penned a number of songs that stand beside the creations of Kern, Gershwin, and other greats in the catalog of American popular music.

A proponent of the "To Hell With Posterity" school of composition, Weill used popular German tunes of the Twenties in the three operas which provide the thematic material for this highly unusual jazz album.

Both jazzmen Previn and Johnson are versed in classical concert music and are skilled composers and arrangers. They show great love and respect for Weill's unforgettable music, and yet give it astonishing new treatments.

In addition to Previn's brittle piano stylings and J. J.'s masterful trombone, the quartet is rounded out by Red Mitchell on bass and Frank Capp on drums.

The two title-tunes of this confusingly-titled LP have been done to death by everyone from Lottie Lenja (Weill's widow) to Andy Williams, and a new and worthwhile interpretation seemed well-nigh impossible. Previn and Johnson find, however, that nobody has tried it in two keys at once yet, and that's what they proceed to do with great success.

Both staunch and experienced Weill fans and those who have never gone beyond Sir Maheath and His Knife will enjoy this new stereo-disc.

You have christened Aurora in May sixty-two.
As you left the Cape performing your duty
Well wishers with prayers came forth in unity.

With your skilled knowledge you will explore the earth

Bringing forth information of value and worth.
It is men like you with great dedication
Who risk your lives to give us strength as a nation.

You were born to be a man of great adventure
As a child on the wing you had no fear of danger.
So let's support these men who make us great
Remember, dedication and honor are wonderful traits.

HANDSOME IS the word for the setting and costuming of Festival Theater's current production, "Thor, With Angels," now playing at the theater on the San Francisco Theological Seminary campus in San Anselmo. In this scene Richard Lee as Osmer, kneeling left, helps his brother, Tadfrid, played by Duane Rice, to rebuild the altar to Woden and Thor. Behind them are Douglas Land, left, and Neal Sullivan, right, cast as brothers, and Elizabeth Berryhill who portrays their mother. In extreme rear is Louis Bennett who plays the magician Merlin. The Christopher Fry play is set in sixth century Britain. Tom Borden designed the sets, Bella Edidin the costumes. The play is performed regularly Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 o'clock with a special United Nations benefit performance scheduled for tomorrow at 8 p.m.

BOOK REVIEWS

New O'Hara Novel Tells Story Of A Rascal In Movie Capital

THE BIG LAUGH by John O'Hara, Random House, 308 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This is not a major O'Hara effort. Many of the qualities that made his trilogy, "Sermons and Soda-Water," and a good number of his previous novels examples of literary excellence are missing in this one.

With that observation out of the way, let it also be noted that O'Hara, even when writing in low gear, turns out material superior to that written by most of our novelists of today.

This is the story of a rascal, a young man without morals, who finds his proper niche as a motion picture idol. And who for a time appears to have been partially rehabilitated by success and marriage.

The cure, however, is not a lasting one.

There is a great deal of frank talk and considerable sex. There is an opportunity to peek behind the scenes at the Hollywood of the 1920s and the 1930s, although you may or may not be convinced that movieland was really like this. There are some interesting characterizations, some shallow. At several points O'Hara seems to run into what is for him a most unusual difficulty with dialogue. It fails to ring true. And the story itself is thinner than that usually found in an O'Hara book.

Certainly "The Big Laugh" is bound to suffer by comparison with Herman Wouk's new "Youngblood Hawke," granted the latter is a far bigger book. It is also far better.

But O'Hara fans will enjoy "The Big Laugh" and many poorer novels have been and will be published this spring.

On Scuba Diving

VENTURES INTO THE DEEP by Leonard Wibberley, Ives Washburn Inc., 177 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Former Independent-Journal editor Wibberley must be not only one of the busiest of today's authors, but also one of the most versatile.

He has written successful novels, children's books, travel and true adventure books, etc. This time he turns scuba diver and provides himself with material for an appealing book.

Fellow enthusiasts of scuba diving will enjoy reading how Wibberley tackled and mastered that sport. But a far wider reading audience will be found among those who enjoy reading about the mysteries of the deep. Wibberley works in a great deal of fascinating data about the strange creatures and plants which divers "hob nob" with on the ocean's floor. As always, his descriptive passages are vivid.

Wibberley also takes a crack at the spearfishing indulged in by many divers, suggesting that man might be wiser to approach the fishes with sympathy in mind instead of slaughter.

Christian Science

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WAY OF LIFE by DeWitt John with A CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST'S LIFE by Erwin D. Canham, Prentice Hall, 246 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Fred Wyatt.

Most of this book, 193 pages, is John's answers to questions asked by members of other religions or of no church: What the Christian Scientist believes, what he thinks of doctors, how he prays. As a member of the Mother Church in Boston, John writes with authority.

In his words, the Christian Scientist's "religion teaches him that the way of salvation is a way of triumph over dependence on matter."

Canham, the very active editor of the Christian Science Monitor, tells how his family embraced the church and how he became a newspaperman. "The true path to peace lies through spiritual awakening," he writes. An informative volume, regardless of the reader's persuasions.

Writer's Tool

ROGET'S INTERNATIONAL THESAURUS revised by Lester V. Berry, Thomas Y. Crowell Co., 1,258 pages, $5.95 plain, $6.95 thumb indexed. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Only slightly less essential than his typewriter to a writer is his Thesaurus.

Crowell has just issued a revised third edition of the famous Roget's Thesaurus. It's a handsome book. And, more important, it's an extremely functional and useful tool for the writer.

The book has been expanded to include nearly 250,000 words and phrases. And the format is such that the writer has little difficulty in locating the exact word or words he has been groping for in order to put across his point. It is, unquestionably, the finest such reference work in its field.

One more observation: If you write a lot and use the thesaurus frequently, the thumb index feature is well worth the additional dollar it costs.

Amiable Crooks

THAT'S THE WAY THE MONEY GOES by Sigmund Stephen Miller, Crown Publishers, 319 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

If author Miller seems to be a little slow off the mark in this humorous novel, bear with him. He soon gets rolling. And the result is as zany and clever a rib-tickler as you will find anywhere.

It's all about a gang of amiable crooks who, with the help of an impoverished prince, set out to trap a wealthy American heiress. The scene is Italy. The pace is fast. And the gags wonderful.

Miller winds up his fun with a gala party patterned wildly after the Roman orgies of old.

Theatrical rights, incidentally, have been sold to David Merrick and the producer is planning a Broadway musical comedy based on the book.

AN ARSENAL of weapons illicitly "manufactured" within prison walls is shown here by Clinton Duffy, former warden of San Quentin Prison. Duffy discusses his experiences at San Quentin and penology problems in general in the new Doubleday and Co. book, "88 Men and 2 Women."

Clinton Duffy Book Flays Death Penalty

EIGHTY-EIGHT MEN AND TWO WOMEN by Clinton T. Duffy with Al Hirshberg, Doubleday and Co., 258 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

San Quentin has been Clinton Duffy's life.

He was born there, the son of a guard, and grew up just outside the walls. He married the daughter of another guard. He worked there as a clerk, and later was warden for over 11 years. For the next decade, he was there often as a member of the Adult Authority. From his home in Greenbrae, he can still see the familiar walls.

As a boy, he dreamed of becoming warden, and of the reforms he would institute. He became warden, and he made the reforms—all but one.

He could not abolish the death penalty.

Now retired, he has written—with the help of writer Al Hirshberg—"88 Men and Two Women" in the obvious hope that he may yet accomplish this reform also.

He has woven his case into the absorbing stories of men and women who have died on the gallows and in the gas chamber of Marin's walled city.

He presided himself over the executions of 90 of them—88 men and two women. The women were Louise Peete and Eithel Leta Juanita Spinelli, "the Duchess." By no means all the men are even mentioned by name, but many of them are described at length—including Caryl Chessman, Farrington Graham Hill, Arthur Eggers, Leslie Gireth, Howard McMonigle, and others.

All these had done atrocious crimes. All "deserved to die" under the theory of capital punishment. (Duffy devotes a chapter to exploding the notion that Chessman was less criminal than others who paid the supreme penalty in the "little green room.")

But none deserved to be put to death by the state, in Duffy's belief.

He marshals the familiar arguments against capital punishment in a particularly telling manner: the torture of long delays on Death row, the finality that leaves no way out if it is found that an innocent man has been executed, the inequality that must arise because of popular alarm over a particular slaying, or because a particular district attorney is an abler prosecutor, a particular judge more strict, a particular jury severe.

Then he drives home his most telling point:

"The rich are never executed; only the poor end up in death row. Of all the inequities of capital punishment, this is the most glaring. Murder is murder and the death penalty the death penalty, but the twain meet only when the killer is broke. Except for Gireth, who didn't lift a finger in his own defense, I never saw a man of means go to the gas chamber."

This from a warden who presided at 90 executions! This from a man who, as a member of the Adult Authority, reviewed the cases and helped fix the sentences of scores of other killers who escaped the gas chamber!

Aside from its crusading aspect, "88 Men and Two Women" is a fascinating book. Hirshberg, who collaborated with Jim Pearsall on "Fear Strikes Out" and with Bernice F. Davis on "The Desperate and the Damned," has done a beautiful job of writing.

Purely as an interesting human document, this book should rank near the top among those published this year. But if you start in to read it merely for entertainment, you may find yourself (as did this reviewer) changing your opinions about capital punishment—for this is powerful propaganda.

WITH BEARD and scuba diving gear, Leonard Wibberley, former Independent-Journal editor, posed for this photograph for his new book, "Ventures Into the Deep." Published by Ives Washburn Inc., it's a book about diving and about the world beneath ocean waters.

Books On Health & Beauty

Prentice-Hall Inc. seems to have a special liking for the health and beauty fields.

In the former you can take your choice between two conflicting approaches to good health as outlined in new Prentice-Hall books — "Abundant Health and Vitality After 40" by television personality Jack LaLanne and "Be Young With Yoga" by Richard Hittleman. Both sell for $4.95.

LaLanne, as always, advocates vigorous exercise, this time tailored to the special needs of the people who have just turned 40. Hittleman, on the other hand, backs the gentler movements and postures of Yoga.

LaLanne reaffirms his belief in a diet high in protein, low in fats. Hittleman, echoing the Yoga distaste for meat, expresses considerable misgivings toward the protein diet movement.

Both books are generously illustrated.

LaLanne's newest isn't very different from his earlier efforts—except for a few twists especially aimed at the age group he is writing for this time.

Hittleman, a Yoga instructor, presents the physical basics of that movement in a manner which is extremely practical and easy for his readers to follow. No attempt is made to delve into Yoga philosophy.

Also from Prentice-Hall:

"The Polly Bergen Book of Beauty, Fashion and Charm" ($9.95) in which the pulchritudinous entertainer gives her views on such subjects as clothing styles, hair and skin care, exercise, cosmetics, etc.

"How to Relax in a Busy World" ($4.95) in which blind lecturer Floyd Corbin and his wife Eve give their formula for combating tensions. Their ideas prove to be not very different from those advanced in the several other books which have already been written on this subject, some of them also published by Prentice-Hall.

Not published by Prentice-Hall, but falling into this same category is "Why So Tired?" ($3.95) by Marguerita Clark, for 20 years medicine editor for Newsweek magazine. Duell, Sloan and Pearce is the publisher.

Generally a more helpful book than the one written by the Corbins, it tackles fatigue and its causes on a more clinical level. Interesting is the chapter in which Miss Clark presents the ideas of some celebrities on avoiding fatigue. One frequent answer: Plenty of sleep. Another: Get into work you enjoy.

A STORAGE FENCE is a great favorite of any gardener. This one is framed with Douglas two-by-fours, has siding of rough-sawn, silvered western red cedar which blends with the yard's greenery. Doors swing wide to allow easy passage of mowers and garden tools. (West Coast Lumbermen's Assn. photo)

Build Yourself Storage Fence To Simplify Gardening Work

A gardener's best friend might be a storage fence.

What is a storage fence? It is merely a storage shed which is attached to a fence and designed so that its style blends with that of the fence. The two then appear as a single unit.

THE STORAGE portion of the fence is tailored to hold all manner of gardening equipment from the power mower to flower pots. It should be set right on the ground to make it easier to wheel heavy equipment in and out. With that in mind, a good location for the storage unit is close to the house where a paved garden walk or the patio can be extended to form a floor for the shed.

For its style, the most simple thing is best. Plan a box structure with a slanted, shingle roof which will drain to the back. If needed, add a down spout to carry rain water away from the structure and into the yard's drainage field.

FRAMING MEMBERS can be utility grade Douglas fir two-by-fours. Lay building paper over the outside of the two-by-fours for frost-proofing, then side it with either fir or western red cedar.

It's a good idea to use a vertical board pattern for the siding because matching doors are most easily constructed with vertical boards than with horizontal. Tongue-and-groove or channel siding would be ideal for the purpose. If adding the storage unit to an existing fence, be sure to match the texture and finish of the siding material to the fence.

If you start from scratch, consider using rough cedar or fir for the entire structure and letting the wood weather naturally to a silver grey. This not only eliminates future maintenance, but also creates a handsome unit which complements the coloring of plant materials in the garden.

INSIDE THE storage shed, screw hooks into the exposed two-by-fours. Here you can hang small, light-weight tools, keeping them neat and easy to find.

AIDS OFFERED HOMEOWNERS

Two aids for homeowners are being offered at 25 cents each.

Available from the National Lumber Manufacturers Assn., 1619 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington 6, D.C., is the new booklet, "Open House: Previewing Your New Home of Wood." It details the building and decorative qualities of wood for home building and remodeling.

Available from the Ponperosa Pine Assn., 39 South LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill., is a new do-it-yourself room planning kit. Designed to help families plan their rooms, it features scaled-down cut-outs of furniture on drawn-in-scale floor and wall grids.

Shoe Polish Stain Cure Is Outlined

Liquid shoe polishes and dyes often cause permanent indelible stains on rugs and carpets.

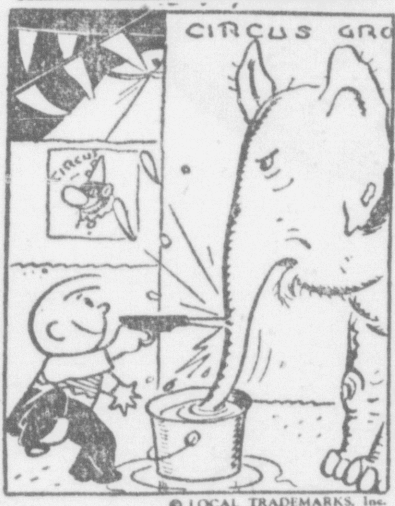

Laboratory technicians have found that stains of this type will sometimes respond to dry cleaning solvents, if treated immediately.

A safe dry cleaning fluid should be applied in small quantities with an eyedropper and then blotted up with clean unstarched toweling or cleaning tissues. Always work from the outside toward the center and be careful not to rub too hard.

If the rug has a rubberized backing, use as little of the solvent as possible since it may damage the rubber.

If the stain doesn't respond to this treatment, better call a professional rug cleaner as soon as possible.

Gardening In June

Have you ever tried growing abutilon, or flowering maple, for summer show? It's a handsome plant, with bold maple-like leaves and orange-red, bell-shaped blooms. You will find it in bloom through much of the year. Give it part shade, and much the same care as you would any acid-loving plant such as fuchsia or azalea.

If you want better-than-average results from potted plants, try submerging the pots in water every so often to let the root ball get thoroughly saturated. So often with top watering, the root ball is apt to dry out slightly and shrink away from the walls of the pot. This permits water to run down around the root ball and out the drain hole before it really has much chance to do any good. You might think such plants are getting all the water they need, when actually they are dying of thirst.

Gardeners in general have a great reluctance to undo anything that nature has done. And for this reason, they hesitate to thin out overbearing trees. You are not robbing yourself of eating pleasure when you thin peaches, plums and other crowded fruits, for the thinning will result in larger, more perfect fruit. Thin to about six inches apart with peaches and four-inches with plums, and do it without further delay. You'll get even better results next year by not waiting this long.

Pinching and pruning are the two operations whereby the gardener can control the growth of fuchsias and encourage their utmost production of new blooms. With hanging fuchsias, pinch to direct the pendulous growth, and once the shape is established, pinch to encourage side shoots and bushiness. With upright shrubs, pinch to get the shape you want. Pyramidal growth may be attained through pinching outside shoots at varying lengths. Broad horizontal growth will result from heading back the upright growth.

Tall bearded iris may be divided now, and new plantings may be made of varieties offered in nurseries. Prepare a bed first by layering steer manure about four to six inches under the rhizomes (not in direct contact with them) and plant the fleshy root so that it is barely under the surface. Keep the planting well watered during its early months and then you can largely leave it to make its own way.

How often do you feed your lawn? Monthly? Bi-monthly? Or just whenever you get around to it. Nurserymen claim that indifferent lawn care results in indifferent lawns and that feeding should be a regular process — just like watering and cutting (or are you indifferent about that, too?). Feed once a month and your lawn will respond with a continuous even growth of green.

Try Conifers For Beauty Year-Around

For year-around beauty of foliage, coniferous (cone bearing) evergreens can't be beat. And nurserymen have conifers to fit every landscape situation—from low-growing junipers to giant Sequoia Redwoods!

It's impossible to imagine California's banks without Pfitzer Juniper and Tamarix Juniper. The ever-popular "Tams" spread close to the ground to form a silvery-blue mat. Less than two feet high, each plant will cover a maximum of 10 feet or more. "Pfitzers" are taller (three to four feet) and have an equal spread of fine, bluish-green foliage.

While "Tams" and "Pfitzers" aren't fussy as to soil or exposure, these "mountain climbers" can be coaxed to quicker growth by a regular irrigating, weeding and feeding program. One tip is to dam around the juniper's basin so water won't drain off—taking valuable nutrients with it; as well as eventually exposing the roots.

Some Hibiscus Are Tougher Than You Think

Hibiscus is generally considered a fragile beauty.

While this is true of some tropical evergreen hibiscus, there are several varieties which are rugged and require only sunny exposure and good garden conditions.

As there are over 200 species of this member of the mallow family (including the herbs Moscheutos and Okra) it would take a book to give specific cultural notes for each.

The toughest of ornamental hibiscus is Rose-of-Sharon, although you'd never guess it by its exotic, hollyhock-like flowers in singles and doubles. The blooms open successively along the multiple stems from midsummer until winter. Rose-of-Sharon never frosts back.

Less hardy varieties may be knocked to the ground by Jack Frost. But never count them out. Come spring, they make a startling recovery.

DEEP WATERING becomes essential for certain evergreens, trees and other deep-rooted plantings during the summer drought. You can build yourself a deep-water reservoir simply by placing a porous clay pot upside down in the plant bed so that the bottom of the pot is at the surface. Place the pot as close to the plant as possible without disturbing its roots. In digging the hole, use a hand trowel to minimize root damage. A five or six inch pot is large enough to be effective. Ideally, an evergreen or tree should be ringed with five or six pots. In row planting, a good-sized pot should be planted between each pair of bushes. The deep watering—or root feeding with liquid fertilizer mixed with water—then becomes a matter of filling these reservoirs. The pots should be removed and the holes filled for the winter months.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- ✓ Feed, water and spray roses regularly to keep them healthy and full of bloom.
- ✓ Make another planting of zinnias this month to lengthen the time you will have this wonderful flower in bloom.
- ✓ Tomatoes may still be planted. Shade the young transplants from the sun for a day or two.
- ✓ Dahlia tubers may be set out in June for fall bloom.
- ✓ Delphiniums that have had their first bloom should be cut back to within six inches of the ground, then fed and watered to encourage another flush of growth and bloom.

A LEGAL POINT is discussed by attorney Lawrence Preston (E. G. Marshall) with the wife of a man accused of murder in this scene from "Death Across the Counter," tonight's "The Defenders" story to be seen at 8:30 p.m. on KPIX. Barbara Turner has the role of the woman in the episode which is being shown for the second time.

TRADEMARK OF Ty Hardin in his role of Bronco Layne in "The Cheyenne Show" series seen Monday nights on KGO is this battered old hat. He's worn it through a half dozen seasons of Cheyenne shows.
